Repeat Achievements

First-Rank Students Top University Lists

Five Greater Victoria students, well known for previous high scholastic standings, headed a list of more than 550 students who recently wrote year-end examinations in the faculty of arts and science at Victoria University.

High-ranking students are C. Anita Harold, 201 Russell, leader in the first year with an average of 90.3 per cent; Margaret Lendrum, 247 Government, second with 89.7; John L. Scadding, 1204 Clover, leader in the second year with 95.1 per cent; Michiel Horn, 523 Harbinger, second with 94.4; Robert Taylor, 2795 Foul Bay, leader in the third year with 92.3 per cent, and David Alexander of Nanaimo, second with 87.3.

HIGHEST MARKS

Robert Bickell of Cobble Hill chalked up the highest marks in the faculty of commerce and business administration with an average of 77.6 per cent.

The five Victoria scholars all plan to carry on studies next fall at the University of British Columbia.

Eighteen-year-old Miss Harold is getting set for a summer tour of Europe.

She won the Victoria district scholarship when she graduated from Mount View High School last year.

SECOND STUDENT

John Scadding, 1204 Clover, 19, second among first students in 1959, was winner of the Matilda Horsepool scholarship in 1958 and Spencer's Stores scholarship and P. H. B. Dawson bursary in 1959.

Now working at Quesnel, he plans to major in economics this fall at UBC.

Michiel Horn, 20, who led first-year students in 1959, is holder of the Kiwanis and Percy Elliott scholarships and plans to enter third-year arts at UBC this fall.

HISTORY PROFESSOR

He hopes to be a university history professor.

Robert Taylor, 21, was high man in the Victoria school district when he graduated from Oak Bay High School.

He hopes to receive his bachelor of arts at UBC next year and continue studies in English and history.

Buy Compact Cars Civil Servants Told

OTTAWA (CP) — Government departments have been instructed to buy compact cars instead of big ones wherever possible, Dr. George Davidson, deputy health minister, told a meeting of the Commons estimates committee.

Louw Lashes Out At U.K. Critics

LONDON (UPI) — South African External Affairs Minister Eric Louw said yesterday that his country's relations with Britain will be seriously disturbed if severe criticism of South Africa is permitted to continue unchecked here.

He said attacks on South Africa from every quarter are increasing "in bitterness and intensity."

These attacks, he said, are "based on ignorance of South Africa and its peoples, and actuated not only by prejudice, but only too often by malice."

Louw criticized the House of Commons for taking "the unprecedented step of discussing and condemning, by a unanimous vote, the domestic policies of a fellow-member of the Commnowealth.

"This was the thanks," he said, "that South Africa received for aid rendered to Britain in past years."

Prelate's Plea

Help Us Remain Friends

LONDON (Reuters) — The Archbishop of Canterbury, speaking on the South African racial issue, yesterday urged the government there to "do something, however small, to relieve the consciences of its friends."

Dr. Geoffrey Fisher noted before an Anglican Church meeting here that the South African government "is insisting that it must bear its own burden, and indeed it must.

"The tragedy is that so far they have seemed to pay little or no regard to the burdens which they are imposing upon the hearts and consciences and political principles of those who are their brethren in the British Commonwealth, in culture, in Christian faith and in common humanity."

The meeting unanimously passed a resolution declaring that it believed the policy of racial segregation to be contrary to the purpose of God.

Press Rapped On Bomarc

LAWRENCETOWN, N.S. (CP)—Revenue Minister Nowlan criticized Canada's press Tuesday for its stand on the Bomarc missile issue, saying the press was "misinformed, prejudiced and biased," and criticism of Defence Minister Pearkes was unfair.

Philip Nearly 'Dots' Ump —Or So He Says in Speech

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip, Britain's best-known polo player, sheds his royal dignity a bit when he canters around the field.

Last weekend, at a match in Windsor Great Park, the umpire penalized him for a foul. And Queen Elizabeth's husband felt like socking the guy good and hard.

He said so at a luncheon given by the Lord Mayor of London Monday.

"I had the greatest difficulty in restraining myself from dotting the umpire," the prince said.

The umpire—Maj.-Gen. Claude Pert, 61—isn't worried.

"Prince Philip was just joking," he said. "He always takes my decisions like a sportsman. He's a charming fellow and a very good player."

'More Drastic Action'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Radio Moscow warned today that if any more U.S. planes are detected over Soviet territory the Kremlin will take "more drastic action," perhaps involving "the security of the U.S."

Meanwhile, a press showing is due later today at which the wreckage of the U.S. U-2 reconnaissance plane—and perhaps its pilot—would be put on display. Russian and foreign newsmen are to attend.

West Virginia

Kennedy Wins, Humphrey Quits

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts won Tuesday's West Virginia primary election, rocketing him within reach of the Democratic presidential nomination.

In a demonstration that a Roman Catholic can carry a state where only 4.5 per cent of the residents are of his faith, Kennedy trounced Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, a Congregationalist.

Humphrey conceded early today that Kennedy had won the primary, and announced that he is dropping out of the race for the nomination.

On the basis of incomplete returns, Kennedy was getting about 60 per cent of the total vote.

With one-third of the 2,751 precincts reported, Kennedy had 69,768 votes to 43,748 for Humphrey.

Canada, U.S. Talk Swap

WASHINGTON (CP)—Phillip Taylor, assistant U.S. air secretary, said Tuesday the U.S. Air Force is considering the possibility of acquiring a limited number of Canadian CL-44 cargo planes on the basis that Canada might be willing to engage in a production-sharing swap by buying U.S. fighter planes in exchange.

Queen Mother Due Despite Mob Riots

LONDON (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth flew off Tuesday night for a goodwill visit to the Central African Federation despite outbreaks of Negro mob violence in the northern copper belt area.

The Queen saw her mother off at the airport with a cheerful wave. The Queen Mother is due in Southern Rhodesia today.

Disorders in the federation during the weekend resulted in more than 100 Negroes being arrested.

I May Kick the Habit But My Wife Won't

Colonist reporter Terry Hammond, along with scores of other Victorians, is trying to kick the cigaret habit with the help of the Colonist's recent series of articles by Arthur King. Hammond, a three-pack-a-day "addict," describes another step in his withdrawal.

* * *

Cigaret Addict's Diary

* * *

By TERRY HAMMOND

Q-Day minus 10.

Although hundreds of readers seem to have joined me in an effort to kick the cigaret habit, it is with profound regret I report that the only two people I actually launched down the road to lung cancer have steadfastly refused to be saved.

One of these is my wife.

Up to the day we were married she did not smoke at all.

SUDDEN STRAIN

A mere 24 hours later she was up to two packages a day.

It was almost as though she had come under some sudden and severe nervous strain.

I asked our family doctor about it.

"It is almost as though she has come under some sudden and severe nervous strain," he said. (This cost me $8 and as any fool can see is practically identical with my own diagnosis).

Anyway, she does not propose to stop smoking.

STRAIGHT ANSWER

I thought she put it pretty succinctly last night when she said "I do not even propose to discuss it."

The other person I lured into the smoking fold was a real catch. He is a former athlete of some renown and his rapid deterioration during the three years since he became a chain smoker one day is sickening to behold.

DRAMATIC NEWS

He accompanied me on a 300-mile round-trip drive in the interior one time, and would not be smoking to this day if my wife had not waited until we were 150 miles out before deciding it was time to have our second child.

In true story-book tradition I started lighting one cigaret after another as soon as I got the news and turned the car around.

EXCEEDING, ETC.

The roads were exceedingly twisty, exceedingly icy, and we were going exceedingly quickly, mostly sideways.

After a couple of near misses with large trees alongside the road while lighting cigarets, this fellow offered to light them for me.

I shouldn't really say he just offered to light them, he actually pleaded with me to allow him to light them.

STILL AT IT

We were only half way back when I suddenly saw that instead of lighting one cigaret at a time, he was lighting three and smoking two of them himself. It is now three years later and he has never stopped.

As it turned out though, there really wasn't any hurry after all. Our second child wasn't born until three weeks later.

Spy Plane Pilot Will Face Trial

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States pledged Tuesday to go to the aid of its allies which might be attacked by Russia for allowing American spy planes to use their air bases.

At the same time the state department accused Soviet Premier Khrushchev of waging a campaign of threats and intimidation against small countries innocent of any wrong-doing.

LANDING POINTS

The state department was replying to Khrushchev's threat to aim Soviet rockets against any foreign bases which serve as takeoff or landing points for intelligence flights into Russia. "There should be no doubt that the United States will honor these defence treaty commitments," the department said in a statement.

The statement came amid these other developments in the war of words over the American spy plane downed in Russia May 1:

BROUGHT TO TRIAL

1. Russia indicated in a note to the United States that the captured pilot, 30-year-old Francis G. Powers, would be brought to trial.

2. Chairman Clarence Cannon (Dem., Mo.) of the House of Representatives appropriations committee reported U.S. intelligence planes have ranged as far as 1,300 miles inside Russia in a series of espionage flights since 1946.

NOT SHOT DOWN

Cannon, who heard central intelligence chief Allen Dulles at a secret briefing Monday, said the high altitude U-2 plane had not been shot down by a Soviet rocket as Khrushchev claimed but was forced down by "some unforeseen and unavoidable "mechanical or physiological defect."

3. The state department assured Japan that future U-2 flights from Japanese bases would be "utilized only for legitimate and normal purposes of weather observation."

QUIETING STORM

This assurance was clearly aimed at quieting the storm in the Japanese Diet which is considering ratification of a Japanese-American security treaty.

In Moscow the Soviet Union notified the United States Tuesday that Powers "will be brought to account under the laws of the Soviet state."

AFTER CONFERENCE

This indication that the pilot may undergo a trial for espionage, probably not long after the end of the summit conference, was contained in a stiff protest delivered through the U.S. Embassy.

The Soviet government protested what it called the espionage-reconnaissance flight of Powers' high-flying Lockheed U-2 jet.

SEEK INTERVIEW

The United States countered with a request in a note of its own for permission for an embassy officer to interview Powers who is reported by the Russians to have confessed he was spying.

It declared that "hostile acts of American aviation which have taken place numerous times in relation to the Soviet Union are not simply the result of the activity of the military command of the U.S.A. in various areas but are an expression of a calculated U.S.A. policy."

KITWE, Northern Rhodesia (Reuters)—White settlers demanded gun licences and a government minister spoke of "extermination" Tuesday night as police and Negroes clashed again in this troubled central African British protectorate.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

SHOULD churches concern themselves with political and social questions? Certainly, writes Rev. Jack Boyne (Presbyterian), 439 Obed Avenue, Victoria.

He praises the column that appeared here May 7. In case I get too pleased with myself, however, another letter-writer shoots down a factual error, May 8. (See Page 5.)

Mr. Boyne is on my side against J. Howard Pew, former president of the Sun Oil Co., who said that churches should stay out of politics. Mr. Pew's statements ran in the magazine U.S. News and World Report.

Says Mr. Boyne: "When Mr. Pew referred to John Calvin as one who thought that the church should not be involved in politics, he should have checked his Reformation history first. The religious reformation was inextricably bound up with a reformation in the political, social and economic spheres.

"This was obvious in Switzerland as well as in Scotland and Germany. Calvin himself was accused many times of being a political dictator in Geneva, and any historian knows that he set up a theocratic type of government in Geneva.

"It seems to me that when Mr. Pew uses the phrase 'the church is the only institution that can save the world from Communism,' he betrays himself immediately.

"It is obvious that for him it is all right for the church to be involved in politics as long as it agrees with the status quo. But once the church seeks reform, the cry is raised, 'The church should stay out of politics.'

"Does Mr. Pew not remember that Hitler wanted the church in Germany to stay out of politics? Does he perhaps remember that members of the Confessional Church in Germany gave their lives because they criticized government policy; and because they got their hands dirty in politics?

* * *

"I studied this past winter for five months under the auspices of the World Council of Churches at the Ecumenical Institute just outside Geneva, Switzerland, and I do know from involved study of their methods of amassing information that they call on the best informed men in the field under discussion.

"For example, for a study on Prevention of War in an Atomic Age they had such men as the following on the commission: Dr. C. L. Patijn, member of parliament, the Netherlands; Prof. C. F. Weizsacker, a physicist from Hamburg, Germany; Rear-Admiral Sir Anthony Buzzard, London; Dr. Arnold Wolfers, professor of international relations, Washington.

"Many other notable men took part in the study."

* * *

This is an answer to Mr. Pew's argument that the council of churches just doesn't have the know-how to talk about vital matters of public policy.

But who does know enough to be sure of anything? Congress? Parliament? The best these groups of laymen can do is listen to the experts, sift evidence, and decide the best way they can.

I'm afraid Mr. Pew would like the churches to be the religious action wing of the Republican Party.

Identical Bids Face Vancouver Probe

VANCOUVER (CP)—City council Tuesday ordered a report on identical bids submitted for supply of materials to the city. The report will cover all such tenders submitted to the city of Vancouver since January, 1959.

The report was ordered after the city received a number of identical tenders for supply of mercury vapor street lights.

It will be made to see whether anti-combine legislation is being violated and city officials indicated a copy may be sent the solicitor-general in Ottawa.

CEMENT WORK

Also under investigation were bids from two firms received last week for a cement contract. The firms, B.C. Cement Co. Ltd. and Lafarge Cement of North America Ltd., submitted identical bids of $67,375.

Tenders for street lights were in two parts.

The first called for bids on supply of 1,700 lamps of 250 watts. Canadian Westinghouse Ltd., Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. and Northern Electric all submitted bids of $147,495.40 plus tax.

The second item was for 600 lamps of 400 watts. Westinghouse, Northern Electric and CLM Industries all bid $64,860.

Ald. Earl Adams told council it appeared to be more than coincidence that on the first item three tenders were exactly $147,495.40.

Flood Disaster Area Declared in Ontario

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — Flood-stricken districts here were declared a "major disaster area" Tuesday by W. R. McAdam assistant Ontario Red Cross commissioner.

He summoned all agencies in a flood-relief drive to a conference as rescue crews moved another 100 families from suburban Mount Joy Township, where the rain-swollen Mattagami River crested control dams and rolled unchecked.

The river rose three inches in one hour Tuesday afternoon—biggest rise since the flooding started Sunday—and threatened to cut off 500 families. There was no danger of loss of life. Monday, nearly 700 persons in 200 families were removed.

Weather Flights Only—Pearkes

U-2s in Canadian Skies

OTTAWA (CP) — United States U-2 reconnaissance planes have made a series of weather flights over Canada, Defence Minister Pearkes said Tuesday night.

The minister said all the flights were restricted to North American air space.

He said no U-2 plane which might have flown spy missions over Communist territory has operated from any Canadian base.

The U.S. yesterday said U-2 planes never operated from bases in Canada.

The minister said the flights were designed to gather scientific information on cloud formations, jet streams, upper atmosphere and radiation.

None of the flights over Canada went beyond North American air space, he said.

On March 15, a U-2 made a forced landing north of Prince Albert, Sask.

Mr. Pearkes said this plane was on a "routine flight" and was returning from a point over the Mackenzie River delta.

The plane had been collecting upper atmosphere samples.

Mr. Pearkes said all the planes involved were unarmed and the flights were cleared in the normal manner.

External Affairs Minister Green Tuesday described as "rather wild speculation" press reports from Washington that the flights are still going on despite the destruction of the American spy plane inside Russia May 1.

However, Washington reports said U.S. State Secretary Herter has left the impression that spy flights may be continued until Soviet secrecy is relaxed.

Informants here said Canada has made clear to the U.S. that the reconnaissance flights over Communist territory should be halted.

They said the suggestion to this effect was implicit in Mr. Green's Commons statement Monday that a continuation of such incidents might trigger a nuclear war.

Spy Incident Folly—Monty

VANCOUVER (CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said yesterday the United States spy plane incident in Russia was "the height of folly."

In an airport interview before leaving for Winnipeg, Lord Montgomery said:

"At this time when everyone is trying to create an agreeable atmosphere, it's the height of folly for the U.S. to allow such flights."

Red Planes Over West

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Soviet planes have been flying high-altitude reconnaissance missions over Western Europe for several years, diplomatic sources here said yesterday.

They said the planes have been tracked by Western radar stations on flights over Britain, the Low Countries and West Germany.

'Khrushchev Should Be Worried'

Key Congressmen Knew Of Spy Flight 'Series'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Clarence Cannon of the House appropriations committee said yesterday the ill-fated U.S. spy flight over Russia last week was "one of a series" about which a handful of key Congressmen were kept fully informed.

Cannon said the Russians "apparently" captured the plane undamaged after it "developed some unforeseen and unavoidable defect."

But he said Nikita Khrushchev tried to give the impression the plane was shot down by distributing "a picture of a pile of rubbish which those who know the plane recognize as spurious."

Senate GOP leader Everett Dirksen said "the concern should not be on our side but on Khrushchev's side."

Asked to explains his remark, Dirksen added:

"Wouldn't you wonder, if you were Khrushchev, how much we knew?"

'Man of Bosham' Defies Peer

LONDON (Reuters) — A weatherbeaten former sailor stood fast in a London courtroom Tuesday, defying the lord of the manor and claiming his Domesday rights as a "Man of Bosham."

The case has sent legal experts delving back into England's feudal past to a Latin document signed by Richard the Lionhearted and the Domesday Book itself, compiled as a kind of giant real estate list in 1086.

It started when 51-year-old Edward Martin refused to pay mooring fees worth about £50 ($133) and a 5s charge for car parking to the Earl of Iveagh, the lord of the Manor of Bosham.

Bosham appears to be just another small village on England's south coast. But the men of the village, under a feudal law still on the books, enjoy the "benefits of Boshamry"— the right to refuse to pay tolls.

The obscure origin of Bosham Manor was traced in court Monday to before the Norman conquest in 1066 when the Earl of Godwin approached the Archbishop of Canterbury and asked for a "boseam" or blessing.

The story goes that he pronounced it more like "Bosham." The archbishop said "I give you boseam." The earl and his men promptly seized the land.

"But I don't think my opponent (Martin) is attacking me on that score," the lawyer for Lord Iveagh quipped. Iveagh bought the manor in 1927.

Martin has claimed he was born within the boundaries of the manor and always has lived there. There now are 31 men of Bosham officially registered.

Space Test Works On Algae Oxygen

SEATTLE (AP)—A space scientist spent six hours in an air-tight chamber breathing only oxygen delivered by tanks of green algae, a microscopic water plant, the Boeing Airplane Co., said Tuesday.

Dr. Romney Lowry, manager of the company's space medicine division, worked comfortably while the algae converted the carbon dioxide he exhaled.

Who's in the Morgue?

'Dead Man' Appears

VANCOUVER (CP) — If it had not rained here Tuesday, John Bertram Currie Hess still would be "officially" dead.

The slight, 60-year-old war veteran went into a Salvation Army hostel in downtown Vancouver to escape the elements and read a newspaper story reporting a body found on the beach two weeks ago had been identified as his.

He was trembling as he spoke to shocked detectives at the police station.

Clutching the newspaper, he told police he was "all-a-tremble."

Attendants at the coroner's office took Mr. Hess to a rooming house to interview landlady Mrs. Phyllis Rocheleau, who had identified the body Monday.

EMBARRASSING

"This is certainly Mr. Hess," said Mrs. Rocheleau. "This is certainly embarrassing for me. I hope you don't hold it against me."

"Don't let it worry you," said Mr. Hess. "I'm glad to be alive.

"If it hadn't rained I would never have known I was deceased."

BELONGINGS

The story of the wrong identification started Monday when Mrs. Rocheleau went to police because Mr. Hess had failed to appear at her rooming house to pick up his belongings and a war pension cheque.

She described Mr. Hess to coroner's officials and then identified the body that had been lying in the morgue for two weeks.

NO WORRYING

Mrs. Rocheleau said she hadn't positively identified the man in the morgue as Mr. Hess. Officials said, however, that she said she was "sure" it was.

Mr. Hess was not worried about the error.

"I have no animosity towards anyone," he said.

NOT WALKING

"I'm glad to be alive. Things may get tough, but I always get along. I've never considered walking into the inlet."

But his appearance put police back to where they started—who was the man who loaded his pockets with 14 pounds of rocks and walked into the inlet?

Background

Jonquiere To 'Star' In Movie

The frigate HMCS Jonquiere will be placed at the disposal of a Hollywood film company seeking "authentic background" for a film on the exploits of hoaxer Ferdinand Demara.

The film, entitled "The Great Impostor," deals with the exploits of Demara including his stint as "Dr Cyr" aboard the Canadian destroyer Cayuga in the Far East during the Korean War.

Jonquiere is scheduled to sail Monday for California on post-refit exercises and before she returns at the end of the month will spend a week as a "set" for actors and film crew.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Six downtown Nashville department, dime and drug stores opened their lunch counters to Negroes yesterday for the first time and served them without incident under terms of a bi-racial agreement reached in weeks of secret negotiations.

High Commissioner:

Commonwealth First British Trade Stand

Any suggestion that the ties of the British Commonwealth are slackening in the field of world trade are incorrect, Sir Saville Garner, United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada, said here yesterday.

He told a joint meeting of the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs that it is not true Great Britain would like to enter the European free market at the expense of trade with Commonwealth countries.

Britain conducts 40 per cent of its world trade with Commonwealth countries, he pointed out, "and as far as any clash between Europe and the Commonwealth is concerned, Prime Minister Macmillan made clear that the Commonwealth would come first."

Trade Truce with Rivals Aim of Europe's Inner Six

LUXEMBOURG (Reuters)—Foreign ministers of the six Common Market nations early today called for a trade truce with the rival British-led European Free Trade Association.

The ministers signed a "declaration of intent" for talks with free trade association members and approved a letter to the association's president suggesting the talks be held within the framework of the 18-nation Organization for European Economic Co-operation, with the U.S. and Canada included.

NEXT MONTH

The 20-nation group meets next month in Paris. The letter suggests the truce talks be held then.

Officials also said that, whatever the result of the talks, a plan to speed integration within the Common Market will be implemented by Dec. 31.

WALLING-UP

The ministers gave up the idea of putting the plan into operation July 1 — 18 months before schedule — by taking the first steps in "walling up" the Common Market with a common external tariff.

Conference sources said soft-pedalling of the speedup plan will bring a "tacit trade truce" which could be used to seek a rapprochement with Britain and her free trade partners.

Volkswagen makes sense for you—Here's why!

Volkswagen's engine is air-cooled, an astonishing advantage when you think about it. No water to boil over in summer. No water to freeze in winter. Owners say the VW engine seems to go on forever with so little effort, fuel or attention. Friction and stress are so low, in fact, that a VW can cruise at 70 all day long without any over-exertion.

Volkswagen is great fun to drive; agile and highly responsive, with one of the smoothest stick shifts in the business. It's 4 feet shorter than conventional cars, yet holds 4 adults, with a surprising amount of room.

Volkswagen's suspension is different; all-independent by torsion bars. It gives you uncanny control over rough roads (no bump-bump-bump). And the new anti-sway bar eliminates swing and sway on curves. The engine in the back gives the Volkswagen superb traction. In mud, sand, ice, snow, where other cars skid, you go.

Obviously, this is a classic design that is not to be changed just for the sake of change. The Volkswagen you buy today will remain in style long after other cars have come and gone.

One of the things designed right into the Volkswagen is easy, low-cost maintenance. The car is so well conceived that its engine can be removed and replaced in only 90 minutes.

And best of all: the price of a Volkswagen is much lower than you would expect. No wonder, then, Volkswagen is the largest selling import in North America—by far.

In the Wake of Magellan

CIRCUMNAVIGATION of the world in an underwater voyage which traversed 41,519 miles and took 84 days, the remarkable feat of the USS Triton announced yesterday, would have appealed to Ferdinand Magellan, the sixteenth century explorer credited with first sailing around the world. America's largest submarine, the Triton is powered by two nuclear reactors and has twin propulsion systems separately geared. With the exception of two brief surfacings—one to discharge a sick crewman—the submarine followed Magellan's track around the world submerged all of the way. For the accomplishment the master was decorated and the crew commended.

The Triton was not the first nuclear submarine to establish marine records. Before that an American atomic craft made a weeks-long voyage submerged, and another of similar type crossed the Arctic ice cap underwater. The Triton, however, sailed through the main seas of the globe under all weather conditions in a voyage lasting nearly three months. Apart from its naval significance, this achievement seems to establish on a firmer basis the vast potential of nuclear power in marine craft. It opens up exciting possibilities of man's traverse of the oceans in that region of calm which is below surface turbulence. It is also a remarkable test of human endurance under strange circumstances.

In an age which can measure at will the temperature on the surface of the moon, command an artificial satellite at twice the distance of the nearest star from the earth to transmit its mechanical observations or stop doing so, "Operation Magellan" may be remembered today and forgotten tomorrow. Yet something new, something enduring is implied. It is that, when there is again a world at peace with itself to travel in, the means of doing so may have advanced beyond all recognition from anything known at the start of this century. It is for its civil consequences, rather than its strategic importance that the voyage of the USS Triton deserves to be inscribed in the record.

Not So Easy

THE U.S. spy plane incident has evoked much startling comment, including a view expressed locally that the only answer to such "nonsense" is a world police force that would keep law and order. One wishes that the cure could be as simply arranged as it is expressed.

The very fact that a police force would be necessary is proof enough of the erring human ways that bring about armies and armaments and spying aircraft. Wars in essence are nonsense, the most monumental nonsense man ever engaged in, but unfortunately the thesis that sin is bad is not sufficient to curb the quarrelling instincts of humanity. If it had been there would be no cold war or, even, a dispute between municipalities.

A world police force has been suggested at various times, but how does one go about creating it and persuading all nations to submit to it? That is the rub. How does one induce Russia to agree, or China or the U.S.A. or any other nation, that it should bow to universal law and order as prescribed by a world agency? This is the very thing inherent in the disarmament talks which have failed dismally at Geneva. It is the latent theme of all international meetings—by nations each afraid to risk their security through unilateral disarmament.

One likes to hope that in spite of appearances nations are moving or will move towards recognition that universal safety—and thus universal peace—can come only via disarmament and general amity. If at all it will be a gradual, step-by-step arrangement, for the realities of human behavior cannot be blinked nor set aside by generalizations.

Even when provoked by the "nonsense" of spying it is not really helpful merely to say in effect that nations should behave. So they should, but practical suggestions as to how they can be forced to do so are what are lacking. That is the grave difficulty.

In the Nation's Interest

ONE of the first in the field to say what it will do in honor of Canada's centenary of Confederation in 1967, the Bank of Montreal announced this week a seven-year scholarship program which will commence next fall. As the new term opens 50 selected high school graduates will be sent on to college under the plan, which will commemorate the bank's 150th anniversary in the same year as the Canadian centenary. During the seven-year period the program progressively will be carried out. A total of 125 awards ranging from $750 to $5,000 will be made to the recipients, and special awards to the top science and top humanist graduates.

Commenting on the long-range scholarship plan, Mr. G. Arnold Hart, president of the Bank of Montreal, said it was designed on a broad basis to contribute something lasting to the nation as it entered its second century. The scholarship program will be carried on in addition to the Bank of Montreal's standing policy in support of Canadian universities, as the commemorative piece in the double anniversary. Graduates under the scheme, he said, would make significan contributions in their lives to the service of Canada through the advance of research in the sciences and by advancement of studies in social science and the humanities. They would be among the trail-blazers of the century to come.

While the Bank of Montreal is getting a flying start with its centenary celebrations, this lead is both a welcome and encouraging one. This nation's greatest assets are its young people, particularly where they will submit themselves to special training for a specific purpose which is close to their hearts. Canada has not lacked for ranking scientists, humanists and sociologists in the past, but the intensification of life in modern terms certainly is calling for more attention to the various divisions of advanced learning which only universities can supply. Anything which helps to bridge the economic gap between the human raw material and these fresh opportunities will be important to the nation.

Interpreting the News

Turkey Alert and Tense

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

THE yellow waters of the Golden Horn bisect Istanbul, sweeping inland in a graceful curve. Slender minarets split the skyline on either side, with here and there the mushroom dome of a mosque rising from a clutter of architecture old and new.

Small craft lie at anchor along the sides; and farther out, the larger ships of all nations. Stretching away, across Istanbul's seven hills are the remnants of ancient Roman walls erected against such ancient enemies as Attila the Hun and the Goths.

Today, farther to the north at the narrowest point of the Bosporus, submarine nets guard against surprise attack by Russia.

Along the banks of the Golden Horn in recent days student demonstrators raised the chant: "Resign Menderes. Freedom. Freedom."

They massed in the streets and before the governor's office, and police raised the two draw bridges of the Golden Horn to prevent their entering Istanbul's European quarter.

United States officials cautioned against comparing the Turkish disturbances with those which resulted in the downfall of Syngman Rhee's Republic of Korea government. But the comparison was inevitable.

Both governments have been staunch friends of the United States. But their peoples also have been staunch friends of the United States and in no case among the demonstrators did anti-Americanism appear.

Both came at embarrassing times. In Turkey the demonstrations came in the midst of planning for an Istanbul meeting of NATO foreign ministers anxious to show their solidarity in advance of the coming summit conference.

Both, from whatever cause they sprang, provided grist for the Communist mill.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IT was Mark Antony, I think, who said that the evil that men do lives after them, and while he wasn't looking into the future and espying Hitler his words could apply to the late Der Fuhrer.

Hitler is unlamented, except by some Nazi-tainted legatees in Germany. He is burned, buried, and gone to some place where perhaps he has time and cause to reflect and repent.

But the odium lingers on. Surprisingly in some instances.

When at war it is part of good strategy to disparage your opponent (so long as you don't underestimate him), enjoy freedom from libel and call him what you will. Thus the wartime sneer at "Corporal" Hitler, for instance.

* * *

I always thought this maligned some good stout chaps and was rather hard on other corporals. It was meant to downgrade Hitler because he assumed the guise of a master general and in uniform himself had never risen above non-commissioned rank. Actually he might have been quite a good corporal for all we know.

He was probably a better man then, anyway.

For a while in the postwar period the post-mortems dismissed him contemptuously as a house painter. This was equally hard on house-painting, a very respectable profession. Hitler wasn't a house-painter, not professionally. He might have done the odd job of this kind when he was hard up, as many other men have, but as we know he was an embryo artist.

He didn't make the artistic grade, which was unfortunate for world society in general. Perhaps he lived before his time. Had he been able to turn his hand to abstractions and be "hung" in an academy there might be no sputniks in the sky today.

These stray thoughts are evoked by another illustration of the distaste still directed his way. A letter-writer in the London Times is shocked that in an auction of modern paintings and sculpture two pencil and water color drawings by Hitler should be included. The writer says that no German auction firm would dare to offer these items, and he condemns their inclusion.

It isn't clear whether it's the quality of the Hitler drawings that is at fault, or Hitler himself. Perhaps his sketches don't measure up to current standards, although judging by some of the things put on display nowadays Hitler's must be poor indeed if they offend the artistic soul.

* * *

But it will be Hitler per se to blame, I daresay. He was an evil man and so all his works are attainted.

This surely is rather myopic, carrying odium too far. Even a bad man might have had some good in him, and these drawings are from a period in Der Fuhrer's life not to his discredit.

The joker is that 100 years from now people will probably flock to see these Hitler drawings if they are still extant. They will be historical curios. Just as buyers would flock tomorrow if Napoleon's inkwell were put up for auction. Napoleon had greatness and was not so evil-hearted as Hitler, but he was scarcely a benefactor. In his heyday he was the bogey that frightened little English children to sleep.

Time works these changes of viewpoint, which suggests that pouring forth posthumous wrath can be rather fruitless.

Mark Antony was not altogether right. The good that men do can live after them too. These drawings may be proof of that. They represent Hitler before he went wrong.

Wilderness City

Brazil's New Capital

By JAMES M. MINIFIE

BRASILIA — Two thousand seven hundred and fourteen years ago a city was founded on the banks of the Tiber by two brothers, Romulus and Remus. At the end of the day's festivities Romulus had all he could take.

His brother apparently had been responsible for the guest list, seeing that the Sabine girls had proper seats and all that sort of stuff. The arrangements had gone haywire: more people had come than had been invited; more had been invited than there was room for.

So Romulus, whose temper was always a bit tricky, slugged Remus and laid him out cold. But Rome had been founded.

That was April 21, 753 BC. On April 21, 1960, Brasilia was founded. Something on the same order happened, except that President Juscelino Kubitschek was operating on his own at the foundation of Brasilia.

Far more people appeared than the pioneer, unfinished frontier city could possibly accommodate. Some of them left, convinced that they could never reach the ceremonies. Some of them fell into ditches and departed disgruntled. Some of them slept in their cars. But President Kubitschek wined and dined 5,300 at his inaugural ball.

Brasilia lies 600 miles west and a little north of Rio de Janeiro, the old capital. It is on a plateau 3,000 to 4,000 feet high, and it has been carved out of the jungle in three years.

Brazilian town planners were invited to compete for a prize of 1,000,000 cruzieros (currently $5,000) for the best city plan. They made elaborate and costly models — all but Lucio Costa, who sent out for 25 cents worth of drawing paper. He covered five sheets with designs and sketches. They were accompanied by a "justification" of some two to three thousand words. The plans and justification were so impressive that the international jury selected them unanimously.

Oscar Niemeyer, Brazil's most distinguished architect and apostle of the modern, designed buildings of concrete and steel, of glass and marble. His winged columns imparted grace and lightness to his daring conceptions, and provided a leit-motif. The president's palace, the Palace of the Dawn, is already a showplace. Ministries are ranked one after the other, glass boxes like the secretariat of the United Nations. There are murmurs about this style taking too little account of the ardent sun; and those who have stayed in the hotel-on-stilts complain that this arrangement insures that the elevators cluster at a maximum distance from the rooms ated even the low-priced housing blocks.

they serve.

The move to Brasilia was not universally popular. Some of the senators and deputies came up, took a look at the bare red earth, the gaunt glass skyscraper of the legislative offices and said it was not for them.

The diplomatic corps is reluctant to move. That is understandable, several countries have only recently built expensive new embassies in Rio. Juscelino will take care of them too.

"I'll get the diplomatic corps up here," he is reported to have said, "if I have to ask the entire corps to dinner once a week until they get tired of commuting."

It is the little people's eyes that shine when they talk of the fabulous new capital. Their faces glow and they ask eagerly: What did you think of it? Is it as wonderful as they say? It will be like your West. Brazil has a future now.

But the well-to-do businessman, the show-owner who fears Rio may lose its population and business, the bureaucrat who likes his pleasant living and easy access to the Atlantic breakers, these talk dolefully of a divided government, a whim which wrecked the country's finances, and a crack-brained idea which in a few years will be an abandoned city.

Most foreigners think that, if the next president keeps up the pressure, Brasilia may be the decisive factor in the growth of the country, turning its thoughts to the conquest of its hardly-known interior, as decisive for the future of Brazil as the Louisiana purchase was for the United States, or the acquisition of the Hudson's Bay Company's lands was for Canada.

The Packsack

Musical Goose Pimples

VISITING a friend the other afternoon, I noticed a radio in the room, and, since our conversation had got over its first flood, I said:

"Ah, the symphony hour! Let's see what's on."

And I turned the knobs, softly bringing in Brahms.

Glancing at my friend, I saw his face struggling to conceal an expression of impatience.

"Don't you like symphony?" I asked.

"No, it makes me think of funeral parlors," said he.

So I turned it off. Those of us who express a love of classical music are divided into numerous categories or levels. Some have a mathematical or particularly intellectual appreciation of great music that enables them to go into a trance over compositions by Mozart that bore us Tchaikowksy-lovers to death and remind us of the oompah-oompah German bands of our childhood that used to rove the city streets hat in hand.

The most reputable musicians of my acquaintance bow in reverence before Handel, who reminds me of a cheer-leader; and when I get all goose pimples on hearing the Liebestod from Tristan and Isolde, they grin in derision until it is over, then put on the player some finger exercises by Bach, and get their goose pimples.

Music is for them as likes it; and if it reminds you of funeral parlors, turn in off.

The Purple Cow

(From The Ottawa Journal)

THAT bit of a verse about a "Purple Cow" does seem a trouble-maker. Last week in this column we said there had been a long-ago controversy in the London Times about its authorship with the thing not definitely resolved, whereupon we get pelted with letters from correspondents implying that we ought to have known better, seeing that this anthology or that attributes the authorship to Gelett Burgess. Indeed, one correspondent writes privately to say that there couldn't have been any argument in the Times at all, seeing the "Purple Cow" man was well known.

Well, there was a controversy in the London Times (it was in the 1920's, as we remember it) and it was over a disputed authorship of the "Purple Cow," and the controversy was so interesting that Sir John Willison (who could write delightfully when he got off politics and the Empire) devoted a whole piece to it in the old Canadian Magazine. We do not remember whether Willison himself had any particular views about the authorship—we're not that good—he was mainly pointing out that only in England could such a controversy take place. Nor are we certain, remembering over that long stretch, whether Burgess' name was mentioned.

But Burgess himself, in a later verse which he wrote, suggests that there had been doubt and argument about the "Purple Cow"—"Ah, yes, I wrote the Purple Cow . . ."

Anyhow, we herewith put the beast out to pasture.

Washington Angle

Intimidating the Senate

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE opponents of a nuclear test agreement are doing their very best to try to insure that if a treaty is submitted to the Senate it will either be strangled in committee or defeated on the floor.

The lengths to which they have gone are quite extraordinary. They have sought to make it appear that the scientists who testified before a subcommittee of the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee were all in agreement that detection methods as currently known are so faulty that no control and inspection system would be acceptable.

Hans Bethe, one of America's most distinguished physicists who has been a proponent of an agreement, says this is simply not so. He undertook in his testimony to show that by adding more seismic stations, at an additional cost of not more than $60,000,000, virtually all the risk of cheating would be removed.

* * *

In short, despite the conscientious resolve of Chairman Chet Holifield, an effort is being made to turn the results of the four days of hearings into a snow job to intimidate wavering Senators from voting for a treaty.

For Bethe and a great many distinguished scientists the issue is so clear. Both the Soviet Union and the United States have long-range missiles capable of delivering metagon warheads to almost any point in their respective territories. The size of the warhead could perhaps be reduced by further testing and the speed and range of the missile thereby increased.

By stopping testing under a control and inspection agreement there is a chance that the spread of nuclear weapons can be checked. At the same time, with inspection stations set up inside the Soviet Union as well as in this country, the first step toward breaking down the barrier of secrecy would have been taken. It would also be a first step—a token beginning—in the general direction of disarmament.

The danger is that if the United States comes back with more and more objections and finally if the treaty is not ratified, the opportunity will be lost. Then, quite conceivably, Moscow could revert to the Stalinist line and the competition in arms would go on to ultimate disaster.

Fortunately, majority opinion in the Administration is for an agreement. The Democrats have so far resisted any politicking on this perilous issue. Senator John F. Kennedy responded immediately to President Eisenhower's proposal for a moratorium on small explosions with a generous and high-minded declaration that as President, he would observe such a moratorium.

Letters to the Editor

The Apple Cart

For some unknown reason the U.S. seems bent on upsetting the world's apple cart, at the stage when it appears that some progress towards world peace is in the offing. Their most recent attempt, an aircraft on an intelligence mission which the Soviets unceremoniously shot down.

This incident will definitely give Premier Khrushchev an advantage at the summit, and has no doubt hurt the U.S. as far as world opinion is concerned. Also one can easily imagine the propaganda value not only for Russia but China as well.

The U.S. has cried out bitterly that the Iron Curtain makes these intelligence flights necessary. It takes little thought to imagine the American reaction if the shoe was on the other foot, and it had been a Russian aircraft on the same mission over American territory.

I personally cannot see how the U.S. expects to benefit from spying on a country she is negotiating with for world peace. Or how President Eisenhower intends to form an argument on his policy of "open skies" when an American aircraft has violated Soviet territorial rights even before negotiations get underway.

Not only in this instance, but the open admission that previous flights had been made for the same purpose. And how he intends to discuss nuclear disarmament when he stated only recently that the U.S. intends to resume underground nuclear tests.

Hoping to correct your columnist G. E. Mortimore's misconception on Marx where he said, "People are looking for a lot more than food. This is where the first Marx went wrong . . ." I would like to quote Marx from the Communist Manifesto where he spoke of the majority as being ". . . a class of laborers (workers), who live only so long as they find work, and who work only so long as their labor increases capital," as well as his statement in the Contribution to a Critique of Political Economy—"The mode of production in material life determines the general character of the social, political and spiritual processes of life."

The processes of life include much more than food, though food, clothing and shelter, etc., come first before the other items can be attempted.

If Mr. Mortimore wants to criticize Marx, he should find out what Marx said first.

Ride on Air

We should be grateful to the B.C. Electric Company for the excellent new GM buses. They literally ride on air instead of normal springs. Let us hope they soon get more to replace the ancient boneshakers such as No. 664, it really seems to be falling apart.

A good slogan for the company could be, "Buses solve the parking problem." Not original but factual.

McKay, Cormack to Repair Damaged RCN Harborcraft

McKay, Cormack Ltd. shipyard has won a contract to repair the RCN harborcraft which had its bow sliced off in collision with the destroyer escort Terra Nova while the warship was undergoing pre-acceptance trials.

A civilian dockyard employee lost his leg in the accident off Victoria's waterfront in March, 1959.

Capt. G. A. Veres, managing director of the shipyard, said the contract will provide work for 20 men for about two months. It came when layoffs were threatened by lack of work.

Globe Circled Under Sea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. atomic submarine Triton surfaced off Delaware Tuesday to complete an epochal around-the-world voyage beneath all the earth's great oceans in 83 days.

The Triton, a 7,750-ton vessel powered with twin atomic engines, carried 183 men on her 41,500-mile voyage.

Kicked, Punched Accused Allege

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police Tuesday were investigating the claims of a Toronto jeweler and a Vancouver warehouseman that they were beaten by police in city jail.

The beatings allegedly took place early last Friday while the men were being held on drunk charges.

But the Toronto man, Lionel Bourgeault, 29, and Cliff Smith, 27, were acquitted of the charges of drunkenness Saturday.

Smith told reporters and police he was kicked in the groin while Bourgeault, manager of a jewelry store, said he was punched twice in the left eye.

NO NAMES

The men said police have refused to give them the names and numbers of policemen on jail duty who they claim beat them.

They were also refused blood and breathalyzer tests which they requested and police refused to let them telephone a lawyer.

The two said they were sitting in a lighted doorway in an alley behind the police station when a patrol car stopped and a policeman told them to move along.

They carried on talking and the police car returned about an hour later. They said they had drunk two glasses of beer each early in the evening and were not intoxicated.

The two were taken to headquarters and charged with being intoxicated in a public place.

Beaten Sailor Wins $15,000

SEATTLE (AP) — A U.S. Navy sailor who accused two Seattle policemen of putting him in hospital for six months has been awarded $15,000 damages by a superior court jury.

Martin Eugene Corley, 32, of Eugene, Ore., had sued Patrolmen Harry Johnson and Dana Shearn for $150,000.

Corley charged the officers followed him into the Seattle naval station Jan. 13, 1959, for a traffic infraction and beat him so severely he lost part of the sight of one eye and suffered a broken leg.

The policemen said Corley resisted arrest.

Women Threaten Hunger Strike

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Twenty-one white women, held in jail under emergency regulations, thratened Tuesday to go on a hunger strike unless the government releases them before Friday or files formal charges against them.

The women are among more than 1,700 persons of all races arrested since racial unrest took a violent turn in South Africa last month. Under the state of emergency invoked by the government, those arrested can be held indefinitely without being charged or arraigned.

The women, in a petition to Justice Minister Francois Erasmus, said none of them had been told the reason for their arrest or how long they would be detained. They denied committing any crimes.

The petition says the women have 34 children who need their care, and that 19 of the children now are without parents because their fathers also are under arrest.

Death Haunts Invaders In Grim 'Headless Valley'

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—A grim tale of death and suicide in the fabled Nahanni Valley was told yesterday as two members of a five-man prospecting party recovered in hospital here.

Dead is Alex Meiskonen, killed in a self-imposed dynamite explosion March 17. Missing and believed dead are Tony Pappas and Orville Webb. In hospital here are Dean Rosswarren and John Richardson.

The five men went into "The Headless Valley"—last October to prospect and stake. They had thought they were to be picked up March 3 at their camp on McMillan Lake, but no plane arrived and food supplies rapidly disappeared.

Pappas and Webb, driven by hunger, left the camp on foot in April in an attempt to reach the settlement at Nahanni Butte, a 110-mile hike over treacherous terrain.

For two months, the men said in an interview, they had staved off starvation with a diet of dog meat, squirrel, a paste made from cracking and boiling the dog bones and boiled moosehide.

UBC Invitation to African Defeated by Apartheid

VANCOUVER (CP) — A plan to sponsor a Negro South African student at the University of British Columbia has fallen through because of South Africa's rigid apartheid policy.

The National Union of South African students told the UBC Student Council in a letter that all applications for passports in the last year have been refused. It was extremely unlikely that any non-white student granted a scholarship by UBC would be allowed to leave the country.

'Chicago-Style Ambush' Right in Heart of London

LONDON (UPI) — Britain has dropped its holier-than-thous attitude about U.S. underworld crime, because of a sudden realization that "it can happen here" and is happening.

The phrase that used to draw smiles from the British—"gang guns barked from a black limousine" and a man fell dead—happened last night.

Not in New York or Chicago—but right in the heart of London, the Notting Hill district. Billy Smith, 23, who was afraid a gang was out to get him, crawled into a house with bullets in his back and died.

"A Chicago-style ambush," said the Daily Mail.

But Scotland Yard knows that Chicago papers may soon be speaking of "London-style" violence. For under the surface a gangland war is building for money and power, a war that will be fought with guns and—more terrifying—with razors and hatchets.

The public got a glimpse of what understaffed police face yesterday when burly Jimmy Nash was jailed for five years for beating up a night-club owner after being found innocent of murdering him. Police beliefe a shakedown of drinking clubs, strip tease joints and shady cafes is involved.

The Yard believes gangs want control of these clubs because they are the stamping grounds of prostitutes driven off the streets by a new law. Even bigger stakes are to come – protection of the legalized betting shops envisioned by legislators.

One of the city's toughest gangs has assembled a small army of teenage hoodlums and hardened criminals and armed them with guns, knives, hatchets and razors.

One important prosecution witness disappeared before the Nash trial. Another, though shot in the stomach at point blank range, said his eyes were all right when it came to seeing who shot him but his memory was poor.

The good old days of scoffing at Chicago and New York crime are gone.

Launched Yesterday

'Empress of Canada' Carries Proud Title

NEWCASTLE, England — "Empress of Canada," launched yesterday into the waters of the Tyne, and christened by Mrs. J. G. Diefenbaker, wife of Canada's prime minister, carries on a 40-year tradition.

Forty years ago the first "Empress of Canada," built on the Clyde, was launched at Glasgow for the Pacific trade. She followed the Canadian Pacific pattern of three funnels — considered to give a steamship more "face" in the Orient—had a speed of 18 knots.

During the first 29 years of her life the first "Empress of Canada" made 200 crossings of the Pacific.

Ten years later she was requisitioned as a troopship, November, 1939. Her close connection with Canada was maintained when she joined a convoy from Halifax to carry the Third Canadian Division overseas.

Canadian officers, under the command of Captain George Goold, were aboard her in the South Atlantic when she successfully eluded the German pocketbattleship, "Graf Spee" in February, 1941.

Two years later, still under Captain Goold's command, the first "Empress of Canada" again in the south Atlantic, was torpedoed and sunk by a German U-boat, March 13, 1943. Of the 1,076 souls on board, 1,034 were saved.

The new "Empress of Canada," which will enter the U.K.-Montreal service in the spring of 1961, exceeds her illustrious forbear by 6,000 tons, is 68 feet longer, 11½ feet wider and six feet deeper. The new liner embodies features of design, propulsion and safety unimagined 40 years ago.

'Live Dangerously, Avoid Recession'

WINNIPEG (CP)—The head of a 38-member Australian trade mission to Canada said Tuesday a nation must live a little dangerously if it wants to avoid economic stagnation.

Sir Douglas Copland told a luncheon meeting sponsored by the Manitoba government there is no point in hedging against the possibility of future recessions.

"To play for security is to stultify," Sir Douglas said. "Security is a mortal's chief enemy."

By 1970, Sir Douglas said, Australia's work force is expected to increase to 5,300,000 from 4,000,000 and the country must continue its economic expansion to provide jobs for them.

"We've weathered two recessions in the last six years with no visible impact on employment," he said, "and we must continue to operate on the basis that none will occur."

Traffic 'Queen' Beseiged

DETROIT (CP)—Mrs. Louella Puett, Detroit's self-styled undisputed traffic ticket queen, turned her home into a fortress Tuesday as policemen tried in vain to serve a wararnt for her arrest.

The 80-year-old lawyer barricaded herself in her home while the constables circled the dwelling, ringing doorbells and pounding on windows.

"She is bound to get mad enough to come out and chase us," said one. She is wanted for 96 traffic tickets.

Saanich Agrees to Try Street Name Changes

Saanich public works committee last night indicated willingness to go along with a post office recommendation that names of some streets be changed, if the city is willing to make a concession.

On the assumption that the city would be willing to change the name of Ash Street, Saanich proposes to make Joyland, Grandview and Haley into Ash Road. A short stretch of the existing Ash Road, between Torquay and Tyndall, would be renamed Barrie Road.

After a reaction to this proposal is received from postal officials, council will again feel out the opinions of residents living on the streets which would be affected.

To date, opposition to suggested street name changes has been "almost unanimous," municipal engineer Neville Life told the committee.

City Police Arrest Yachting Suspect

Victoria police are holding a suspect wanted in Vancouver in connection with a bad cheque—given as boat rental on the 42-foot cabin cruiser on which the suspect came to Victoria.

City police first heard of the missing $19,000 Arrawac II and her wanted renter from a news report, which said the boat had been found tied up in the Inner Harbor.

A telephone call to Vancouver police confirmed there was a warrant for a man who had taken the Arrawac.

A short time later a suspect was in custody.

Harold Clay, representing Clay's Wharf in Vancouver, said a man had rented the $50-per-day craft Sunday, and had given a worthless cheque for $150 to cover the rental.

Paris Quiz Produces Blush

OTTAWA (UPI) — Postmaster General William Hamilton found himself blushing Tuesday in trying to account for his spare time in Paris while attending an international bureau of exhibitions meeting last week.

Azellus Denis (L, St. Denis) asked the minister if he had met his French counterpart while in Paris.

"Unfortunately my time in Paris was devoted to other matters . . ."

The members started snickering and Hamilton started blushing.

Port Alberni Session

Free Road Access Goal of Cabinet

PORT ALBERNI — "We're not trying to dodge the situation, we are trying to meet it," Premier W. A. C. Bennett said when the question of restricted access roads was presented by a delegation from Tofino-Ucluelet District Chamber of Commerce at a cabinet meeting here yesterday.

He told Villiage Commision Chairman James Forbes who presented the west coast organization's brief that the government was pleased to have agitation toward lifting restrictions.

He pointed out that the B.C. government had spent $2,000,000 on the Alberni-Tofino Road and "we didn't build this road to remain on its present status."

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi said that agreements with forest companies which had undertaken construction of portions of the road binds the government until 1964.

The Tofino-Ucluelet submission was one of a half-dozen dealing with roads to serve the Island.

MLA John Squire asked for lifting of restrictions on the Alberni-Tofino Road, work to bring the road up to standard within two or three years, an access road to a public working circle in Barkley Sound area, a four-mile stretch of road to connect Port Albion and Ucluelet, construction of a stretch of some three-and-a-half miles to connect Bamfield with the private road now extending past Sarita.

He also contended that a road running northwest up the centre of the Island is practicable. "Such a road would tie in with existing logging roads in the Vernon, Woss and Nimpkish Lake regions and would, it is hoped, eventually have its terminus in the Quatsino Sound area."

Golds-Oils Deteriorate To New Lows

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials dragged the stock market lower at the close of light trading with golds and Western oils both hitting new lows.

Steels and banks were the main contributors to the depression among industrials. Steel Company of Canada dropped ¾, Algoma Steel fell ⅜ and Canada Iron Foundries and National Steel Car both were off ¼, although Westeel and Atlas Steel saw a fractional improvement.

The Bank of Montreal, Nova Scotia and Commerce all traded lower, together with oil refiners, while papers had mixed trading.

Gains were few and far between, although Southam went ahead three points and Traders' Finance B gained 1½.

Golds lost support, with Giant Yellowknife, Hollinger and Kerr Addison all showing losses.

Canadian Husky led Western oil losers, down 40 cents, while Calgary and Edmonton lost ⅛ and Home Oil A and B and Pacific Petroleum all dropped 10 cents.

Newsprints Ease

MONTREAL (CP)—A softer newsprint group led the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges lower in light trading.

In newsprints, International Paper dropped 3 at 98, Fraser fell ¾ at 26¼ and Price lost ½ at 41½ but Anglo-Canadian Pulp, up 1 at 38¼, and Consolidated Paper up ½ at 41½, went against the trend.

Among industrial losers, Brazilian Traction was down 20 cents at $3.50, Traders Finance B 1¼ at 35⅝, Steel Co. of Canada ⅞ at 74 and National Steel Car at 16¼, John Labatt at 25 and Trans Canada Pipe, at 19¼, all off ¾.

On the winning side, Crown Cork gained 1½ at 48, Ogilvie jumped 2⅝ at 42⅝ and Traders Finance A rose ⅞ at 37.

Downswing at N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market declined under presure developing late in the session.

Prices moved narrowly on either side of the previous close until the fourth hour when sellers grew restive and the list took a decided downswing.

Some aircraft, rocket and communication stocks gained.

Lukens jumped more than 2 in the steels where such leaders as U.S. Steel and Bethlehem dropped fractions.

Rails hit a new low for the year in their average.

Chrysler dropped more than a point in an irregularly lower auto section.

Minnesota Mining, which reported record earnings, an increased dividend and the development of a new product rose 2¼ to 194.

London Stock Prices

LONDON (Reuters) — Distinctly steadier conditions developed in the industrial market, but there was no improvement elsewhere.

The main feature was the weakness of copper shares following the disturbances in the Rhodesian copper belt and this also adversely affected sentiment in gold shares.

Gilt-edged issues developed a hardening tendency after a dull opening and there was little change on balance.

Oil shares were generally irregular but the leaders showed small gains.

Montreal Bonds

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal bond market was unchanged to slightly easier.

Medium and long-term Government of Canada bonds eased ¼ in quiet trading and the shorts were off a nickel to a dime in fairly brisk morning trading.

Provincials and corporations were unchanged and generally quiet.

Grain Market

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most grain prices were irregular in a moderately active trade.

The United Kingdom was credited with purchasing 400,000 bushels of Canadian barley and small quantities of flax. France was also a buyer of parcel lots of flax.

Some selling in flax was prompted by lower linseed oil prices on the continent.

Bond Market Switch

Public Prefers Longs

Trend Changes to Long-Term Securities

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The most significant feature of the bond market, apart from the recent over-all strengthening, has been the switch of public interest from shorts into longs.

Early this year and during the last quarter of 1959, it was almost impossible to sell the longer term maturities without special inducements in yields and discounts.

In those open-end issues where the investor had an option of taking up the longer or shorter term, the greater part of the money usually went into the shorts.

That trend has completely changed. Longs have grown in popularity and particularly those with favorable non-callable features are being snatched up avidly by insurance companies and pension funds.

The recent issue of Manitoba 5½-per-cents showed how the wind was blowing. Open ended as to $20,000,000, the province took $18,200,000 in 1979 bonds and only $1,800,000 in the shorter term 1969's.

The bond investors are now looking for a generally lowering of interest rates which will probably place a number of the longer term high-coupon bonds, government, municipal and corporation, at considerable premium prices.

RAILS IN TROUBLE

Within the next few years widespread mergers of many of the U.S. railroads may be effected according to Value Line Investment Survey of New York.

The economy of the U.S. has failed to surge back from the 1959 steel strike as strongly as was expected, and the rebound in railroad traffic has been even weaker than that of the economy.

Value Line suggest that if there is any business recession in 1961, it would catch the railroads in a weaker financial position than in the recessions of 1954 and 1948.

A traffic decline of 5 per cent would leave many railroads with scant reserves to fall back on for necessary improvements and dividend coverage.

Mergers and the gradual elimination of wasteful work practices says the Survey, may provide the basis for a considerable improvement in rail earning power by the mid-sixties.

USING WOOD WASTE

Some time ago it was suggested that local sawmills should pool their resources to provide a plan to utilize mill waste. Instead, the mills installed burners and got rid of the surplus in that quick, if smoggy and uneconomic way.

The plant suggested for Victoria was a particle board mill which has been utilized in parts of the United States, but local mills were not convinced of the efficiency of the operation.

Further proof of what can be done to use up sawmill waste may be supplied in the near future from Vancouver where a $60,000 pilot plant is being set up in the False Creek area to make composition building board of a new type.

Inventor of the new process and designer of the plant is an Austrian-born forestry engineer, Josef Banek. He claims the product has been approved for residential construction and can be turned out in slab or block form.

It will use chiefly cedar shavings which are a waste problem in the False Creek area.

If the new plant proves effective, and it is due to go into production in the next few weeks, it should be considered by local mill operators, whose "reeking lums" are creating a fog and smut nuisance to a wide residential area in the west of the city.

Lull in Drilling

CALGARY (CP)—Oil drilling activity in western Canada is at its lowest rate in four years, the Canadian Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors reports.

Only 93 of 307 registered rigs were running last week, 63 of those in Alberta. Saskatchewan had 15 in operation, British Columbia 14, and none were working in the Yukon, Northwest Territories or Manitoba.

When Casey Went to Bat

Nothing but Foul Balls

By FRED DOWN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Casey Stengel recalled Tuesday that he was "just a foul ball hitter" when he played his first professional baseball game exactly 50 years ago.

"I remember that I couldn't hit a ball fair," said the 69-year-old manager of the New York Yankees, turning back the clock to that first game in Kankakee, Ill., May 10, 1910. "I didn't have the foul lines figured out and I hit all the balls foul."

The man who has led the Yankees to nine American League pennants in 11 years played for a winning team in his first game but said, "I guess I was no good luck charm."

"The team won its first game, all right," he said. "But I can't remember when it won another one."

In fact, Casey volunteered, the most memorable thing about that first year in baseball "was a little deal I made off the field..

"I got myself a meal ticket at McGroom's restaurant in Kansas City and got $5.50 worth of food for $5," he said. "You might say that meal money was a bit more important to us in those days than it is to modern players because we were gettin' between $75 and $150 a month."

There are no records of the Kankakee club of the Northern Association in 1920 because the league disbanded on July 4.

"They cut up the July 4 receipts and disappeared," said Stengel. "In fact, they still owe me two weeks' pay."

Stengel chuckled when he compared the "good old days" to modern baseball.

The really big differences, according to Stengel, are modern equipment, superior fields, night baseball and air conditioning.

"You had to have little hands in those days because all they made were small gloves," he said. "That's why all the old players have mangled hands. You'd think they musta been poor fielders but they weren't. Wearin' those old gloves, it was easy to get your fingers all mangled. The bats were different, too. They were made of Cuban wood and when one started to crack we'd stick it in a bucket of water and the crack would close."

Ball players today would find it hard to believe the type of fields that existed in those days, according to Casey.

"They used to make old ballplayers the grounds keepers," he said. "Some of them even had reputations. But the outfields were always uneven after it rained. We're playing on pool tables today because we got men like Mr. Topping (Yankee co-owner Dan Topping) who love to watch the grass grow.

Had Casey realized the anniversary was at hand?

"I hadn't thought of it," he said, "because I was making up Tuesday's lineup. But, now that you mention it, it's sure been fun."

Wooster Shines in Goal

Victoria Tastes First Victory; Third Place Next in Sight

Faced with the knowledge that it had to start winning soon or drop out of what had promised to be a four-team scramble, Victoria's Inter-City Lacrosse League entry met the challenge last night at Kerrisdale Arena by whipping Vancouver 11-7.

Victory was the first in five games for the Islanders, who get the chance to grab a share of third place tonight at Memorial Arena when they tangle with the mainlanders in a return go.

Vancouver	5	3	2	43	45	6
New Westminster	4	2	2	34	31	4
VICTORIA	5	1	4	40	50	2

Last night's score: VICTORIA 11 at Vancouver 7

Next game: tonight — Vancouver at VICTORIA.

Combining their biggest goal production of the season with an improved defence, which featured the steady and often brilliant play of youngish Fred Wooster in goal, the Victorians grabbed an early 3-0 lead and were never headed.

Vancouver rallied to get to 4-4 and 8-7 but the winners failed to pressure and each time their lead was threatened came back with a rally of their own to keep control.

BEAUTIFUL SHOT

Vancouver got to 2-3 in the first quarter and was threatening to take over when Stu Smith set things right with a beautiful shot to a top corner.

But things got a bit sticky again midway through the second quarter as the Mainlanders drew even. There Paul Parnell stepped in with a scoring shot on an odd-man play and when play resumed after the half-time interval, Parnell fed rookie John Hanson a scoring pass and Jim McNeill alertly grabbed a loose ball to make it 7-4 with a fine low shot.

Not finished yet, Vancouver got to 8-6 before the quarter ended, to 8-7 at 4.05 of the final 15 minutes.

Once again penalties hurt as the Victoria club got their fourth odd-man goal, Alan Gill pulling the trigger after being set up by Whitey Severson while Bill Barbour cooled his heels at 7.58. McNeill clinched it at 12.07 on a play with Tom Collett and Gary Moore pumped in his ninth goal with Vancouver playing two men short to end the scoring at 14.52.

Gill and Parnell, who make Victoria's odd-man play click along with Whitey Severson and Moore, each had two goals and three assists for the winners. Severson had three assists and McNeill, looking more and more like the rookie-of-the-year he was in 1959, and veteran Jackie Northup, showing some of his told-time accuracy, each scored twice.

For Gill, the five points gave him 16 for the season, 11 of them in the last two games, and boosted him to second place in the individual scoring race. Nanaimo's Skip MacKay leads him by one point.

Just the same, it was Wooster who got much of the credit from the 1,215 fans. The youngster, playing his first full game, stopped 28 shots and was particularly effective in the first and third quarters when he missed only four times on 23 chances to go wrong. Stan Joseph's average was slightly ruined, the Vancouver veteran stopping only 16 of the 27 shots he had to handle.

Rocky Breaks Slump For Himself, Tigers

Home runs won three of the six major league baseball games played yesterday but none were more dramatic than the one which ended a lengthy slump for Rocky Colavito—and for Detroit Tigers, too.

A do-nothing slugger since he hit home runs in the second, third and fourth games after being traded away by Cleveland, Colavito stepped up with two out in the ninth inning of a scoreless game and blasted a pitch out of Griffith Stadium to beat Washington Senators, 1-0.

It ended Detroit's losing streak at 10 games and gave southpaw Don Mossi his first win of the season. Hard-luck loser was Truman Clevenger, who gave up five hits to Mossi's three. Mossi struck out seven and had perfect control.

Things were almost as dramatic and just as spectacular at Boston, where the Red Sox used two grand-slam home runs to end Chicago White Sox' win streak at four games with a 9-7 decision.

Vic Wertz, boosting his lifetime total of runs batted in to 1,001, connected in the first inning off Early Wynn, failing for the fifth time to go the distance or record a victory.

After the White Sox had pulled even at 5-5, Rip Repulski, making his American League debut, made Don Ferrarese the loser with the second four-run fourmaster.

The White Sox, however, didn't lose the lead as New York Yankees again failed to get relief pitching and were beaten in extra innings for the second successive time, this time 5-1 by Cleveland Indians.

Jim Perry had the Yankees blanked on one hit when Elston Howard forced an extra inning by hitting one into the stands in the eighth inning.

The Yanks called on Ryne Duren, unscored on in 10 previous innings this season. His record promptly went out the window as doubles by rookie Wally Bond and Johnny Temple sent in the tie-breaker and Jim Piersall followed Harvey Kuenn's single with a three-run homer.

A solo home run by Hal Smith and a two-run shot by Bill Mazeroski gave Frank Law all the runs he needed for his fifth victory in six decisions as the Pirates skimmed by Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-2.

Philadelphia Phillies were the Giants' victims, losing 4-2

Hot, Cold Hurling In Babe Ruth Loop

Best demonstration of pitching control of the young minor baseball season was given Tuesday night by Ken James who allowed just two hits and did not walk a batter as UCT downed Menzies, 8-3, in a Victoria Babe Ruth League game.

Both extremes of control by pitchers were evident in the game. Mike Hart and Henry Klatt, toiling for Menzies, gave up only two hits but they walked 12 batters.

Gerry Day Big Winner In Trap Shoot

Gerry Day, a comparative newcomer to top competition, was the big winner at the Vancouver Island trap-shooting championships held at the Victoria Gun Club Sunday.

Placing first in the "B" division doubles with 44x50, Day won the handicap championship in a shoot-off after he had tied with John Olson and Vern Barry at 45x50. Altogether, Day scored 134 out of a possible 150 birds for the high over-all count.

George Smith won the "A" class 16 yards target title with 42x50 and Dib Noble, with 46x50, was high in "B" class. Doug Beaumont also broke 46 birds to win "C" class while Bert Thomas topped "D" class with 43x50.

Gordie Lamont won "A" class doubles with 38x50.

Farmers Post Second Win; Pro-Pats Shade Chinese

Farmers were slow getting untracked Tuesday night, but once underway last year's champs were tough to stop as they ran up a 9-2 victory over Sooke in Central Park Softball League play.

It was Farmers' second win in as many starts and gave the team a first-place tie with Duncan Mayo Lumber.

The surprising Sooke team jumped to a 2-0 lead early in last night's game and held that lead until the sixth inning behind the fine pitching of Larry Jay.

Then Farmers began to move. They scored four runs in the sixth, three more in the seventh and finished with two in the eighth.

Tim Walker led Farmers at the plate with a triple, double and single while Ben Price had a triple to drive in two runs.

Tim Goudie had two singles and a double, driving in both Sooke runs.

Meanwhile, Gerry Mesher pitched a four-hitter and Dave Ready hit a home run and a triple as Pro-Pats downed Chinese Students, 7-5, in a Heywood Avenue Park League game.

It was the first loss of the season for Students who lost their final chance in the eighth inning when Mesher struck out Eddie Lou with two runners on base.

Outfielder Terry Suhnder was another big gun as Pro-Pats won their first game of the year, hitting a triple and a single.

Buckaroos Likely Eighth WHL Club

Everything pointed towards an eight-club Western Hockey League for next season as club and league officials started trekking towards Calgary yesterday for the annual meeting, which starts tomorrow.

Nothing, of course, will be definite until after meetings have been held, but the indications are strong that Portland will join the seven clubs which were operative last season — Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, Spokane, Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle. And that despite unsettled conditions in Winnipeg, Spokane and Victoria.

Winnipeg, apparently feeling that it could not afford to be part of a league which might extend as far south and west as Los Angeles, has been attempting to form a fifth professional league.

However, owner Jack Perrin didn't get too much enthusiasm from the St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and St. Louis clubs, who played in the International Hockey League last season, at a weekend meeting in St. Paul. Then, too, the news that Los Angeles will probably not be included for next season has increased the possibility of Winnipeg remaining in the WHL.

That was made clear yesterday by league-president Al Leader.

"Jack Perrin," Leader said, "hasn't informed league headquarters that he intended to drop out of the league and Winnipeg is included in the schedules to be presented at the league meeting. It's highly unlikely that Winnipeg will leave our league."

Victoria's uncertainties were also cleared up considerably this week with the announcement about Los Angeles. If the WHL doesn't move south into California, chances are good that Saskatoon-contractor Jim Piggott will carry on here.

Reports have it that Spokane will also carry on for next season.

Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver, Seattle and Portland are apparently set with no problems at all about continuation of operation. The Portland club, which will have Hal Laycoe as coach and a brand-new arena to play in, has been named the Buckaroos.

Valiant's Hot Time Record for Province

Although Victoria High School's annual track meet is scheduled for Friday afternoon, one of the major events was run Tuesday and lead to what coach Gordon Hartley claims is a B.C. high school record.

John Valiant won the open classification two-mile race in a time of nine minutes, 58 seconds. The previous B.C. record for high school students was 10 minutes, six seconds.

Hartley, who coaches all Victoria High's runners, intends to have Valiant's time approved as a new record.

Two other runners broke the old mark during Tuesday's race. John Cliff finished second at nine minutes, 58 and one-tenth seconds while Alf Lincoln placed third at 10 minutes, five seconds.

Top performance in Tuesday's field events was given by Bob Vosburgh, who won the junior boys' high jump with a leap of five feet, five and one-eighth inches. It was a new record for field eliminations at Victoria High.

Eliminations will continue until Friday, when the annual meet will be held. The meet begins at 1.30 p.m.

Meanwhile, the Oak Bay track meet will also be held Friday at that school at 1.30 p.m.

With Harry Young

Members of the Gorge Vale club are doing a wonderful service this week to the B.C. Junior Development program. They are pairing up with the 100 boys and girls who have been taking professional lessons at the club, in a nine-hole "greensome" event.

Most of the club's most distinguished players are participating in this fine sequel to the district's course of lessons, and on the opening day — Monday — the youngsters had a wonderful time, and in their partnership games were given an understanding of the niceties of the game which they might not have picked up otherwise—or at least not for a long time.

The Gorge lady members are teaming up with the girl students tonight and Thursday, and after it is over, the youngsters will be well grounded for the Hudson's Bay junior tournament to be held on May 20— boys at Gorge; girls at Uplands.

In lending their time to this project, the Gorge Vale members have shown a practical interest in youth development that is likely to win over many youngsters who may have been left uncertain about their interest in the game by the mere provision of lessons.

The youngsters are given the opportunity of doing their own score card marking, and by using the greensome method they have the opportunity of driving at every hole. The combination with an experienced member also gives them hints on how they should handle individual situations as they arise between tee and hole.

The Gorge has set a magnificent example, not only to the district, but to the province.

Entries for the junior tournament on May 20 are pouring in fast. The Hudson's Bay sporting goods department, where the entry forms are available, report there has been a steady enrollment ever since the forms appeared at the weekend.

Over 50 boys and girls have already registered.

Bob Woods is believed to have scored one of the best competition medal rounds ever at the Gorge Vale club Sunday. In the second round of the club handicap championship, Bob shot a four-under-par 68, consisting of 14 pars and four birdies.

Leo Derman, the Gorge secretary, tells me that on his records this is one stroke better than the previous best—69 by Norm Boden some time ago.

Winner of the 36-hole handicap event was Wilbur D. de Silva. He had rounds of 86 and 83, and his 14 handicap gave him a net aggregate of 141.

Norm Boden was low gross with 142, and this gave him a share of the second prize in the handicap event with Doug Lowe—each one stroke behind the winner. Bob Woods, who had 83 in his first round, totalled 151 to lift the prize for low gross, defected by Boden.

More than 50 teams have entered for the Victoria District Centennial Foursomes competition at Uplands Sunday. Open to all Vancouver Island amateurs and professionals, it is played over 18 holes on a half combined handicap basis.

Draw for starting times will be made this evening. Entries $7 a team close today.

Chief surprise in the first round of the "A" championship at Victoria last week was the defeat of the holder, Jim Barry. He lost a fine match to Alan Taylor, son of the former club professional, at the 19th.

The co-favorites for the title both moved into the second round. Medallist Bill McColl beat Bob Bailey and George Bigelow accounted for Keith Olson.

In other matches the youthful Al Manson beat Lionel Morrison; Harold Lineham beat new club captain Dick Clay, and George Sparling won a marathon against Harold Husband at the 20th. Lou Williams beat Alex Alexander and Dr. Mackay beat Brian Hunnings.

Saturday's event at Victoria Golf Club is the annual match with the Seattle Golf Club. It will be the 58th of its kind, which makes it the oldest inter-club match on the west coast which is still in existence.

School Bowlers Win Telegraphic Tourney

Terry Green of Neepawa, Man., and Pat Derry of North Surrey, B.C., took singles honors while Victoria took two team titles and North Surrey one in the Western Canada high school fivepin telegraphic bowling tournament during the weekend.

Green posted a four-game total of 1,051 to win the boys' singles crown by two points over Bob Diantree of Swift Current. Mike Devlin of Victoria was fifth with 993.

Miss Derry topped the girls' singles field with a four-game score of 1,003—13 pins better than Bonnie Sinclair of Swift Current. Third was Lyn Tupper of Victoria with 944.

The Victoria high team of Al Scherr, Larry Kilgore, Devlin, Bill Brown and Warren Lowe won the boys' team event with a four-game mark of 4,383. Swift Current and Vancouver tied for second with 4,350.

The mixed team event went to the Vic High team of Wayne Hendry, Bill Atkinson, Lyn Tupper, Judy Oliver and Carol Turner. The Victoria quintet racked up a four-game total of 4,383—180 pins better than second-place Swift Current.

Bowlers from 17 centres took part, the largest entry in the history of the event. It marked the first time Victoria was represented in the event.

Who's the Leader?

Many New Faces In Senior League

The added incentive of moving up to a higher calibre of baseball is expected to make for keener competition this season in the revised four-team Victoria and District Senior Amateur League.

Entry of Victoria Pages into the Northwest Semi-Pro League has resulted in the local amateur league losing many of its veteran players.

However, the players lost to the parent senior team have been replaced in the amateur league through Victoria's vast minor system.

Many of these younger players will be on display Saturday at Royal Athletic Park when the Victoria and District League opens its season with an afternoon-evening double-header.

Eagles and Naval Vets open the season with a game at 1.30 p.m. Saturday. Wakeman-Trimble and Olson Motors follow in the evening game at 6.30.

All clubs will start with several 17 and 18-year-old players, moving up from last season's Colt and Babe Ruth Leagues.

The youth movement also includes the managers of the teams. All four teams have new managers.

Making their first start at managing will be Jim Moody of Eagles, Keith Todd of Naval Vets, Larry McKinty of Olson Motors and John Catterall of Wakeman-Trimble.

All will be playing-managers.

Officials of the league are planning a series of inter-city exhibition games for the Saturday and holiday dates when Royal Athletic Park is not being used by the semi-pro club.

After Saturday's opening, league games will be played on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. All mid-week games will begin at 6.30 p.m.

City Star XI Loses Series

VANCOUVER — An obvious lack of finish around the opposing net proved the undoing of the Victoria and District Soccer League All-Stars as they were defeated, 5-2, Sunday by the Mainland League All-Stars.

Victoria dominated play in the second half before a crowd of 1,000 at Callister Park but managed only one goal after trailing, 3-1, at the intermission.

The win gave Vancouver the two-game, total-point exhibition series by a 6-3 margin. The first game in Victoria, April 23, ended in a 1-1 tie.

Centre-forward Art Hughes and Normie McLeod led the mainland team with two goals each while Eddie Bak had a single. Mario Ferra and Don (Taffy) Jones scored the Victoria goals.

King Fisherman Problem

Steelhead Caught Twice

The Colonist King Fisherman contest has a problem and a fish story.

Richard Ashmore, 1140 Willow, and Thomas Muir, 485 Obed, fishing one-quarter mile below Skutz Falls on the Cowichan River yesterday morning landed a 13:8-pound rainbow trout which takes a commanding lead in the King Fisherman trout division.

The problem is that they can't decide who really caught the fish.

Here is the story and Colonist King Fisherman contest officials will meet soon to make a ruling:

Dick landed into the big fellow about 6:10 in the morning. He was using spinning rod, six-pound test line and a Luhr Jensen rainbow spoon which is one of the small colored wobbling type of spoons painted red, white and green.

"We wouldn't have been using six-pound test line, if we had known the big steelhead were still around," Dick said later.

He played the fish for about 20 minutes when the line broke and took with it about 100 feet of line.

"We thought we had lost it, but we re-spooned to carry on fishing," Dick related. "After a few minutes we saw the big fellow splashing in the big pool down river from where we were fishing."

"We went down to the pool, wondering if we could snag the line," Tom said.

HAND-LINED

Tom did! His hook wrapped around Dick's line which was still on the lure that had the big steelie. Tom reeled in the line and got it to shore where his spoon had wrapped around the line. But, there was still 20 feet of Dick's line to go. This they hand-lined into shore along with the big fish.

"What we want to know is . . . who caught the fish?" they both asked.

For the time being a compromise has been reached. They have jointly entered the fish and have agreed that if they win the Jeubro tent and sleeping bags which will be donated by Jeune Bros. for the biggest trout, they will share the prize.

They weighed their fish at the Quadra Street Tackle Box.

Both are Colonist subscribers and are eligible for all prizes including the hidden weight grand prize of a trip to Acapulco via Canadian Pacific Airlines luxury airliner.

This year contest officials agreed that sea-run rainbow trout (steelhead) would be eligible for the contest.

Oak Bay Residents Not Alone

Big Drive to Start in June

Driven Out of City, Hordes of Crafty Rats Swarm Into Saanich

By JACK FRY

Staid Oak Bay residents may have been taking a lot of ribbing lately from their friends because of the serious rat problem. But, they're far from alone in their battle against vermin.

"The problem is quite severe in Saanich, where 20 calls have been received in the past two days since the Colonist drew attention to Oak Bay's problem," H. G. H. Watts, senior sanitary inspector for Saanich and South Vancouver Island Health Unit, said yesterday.

Saanich's rat infestation now includes the whole municipality, whereas about 18 months ago it was concentrated along a perimeter of the city of Victoria, he said.

Migration of the horde of vermin into Saanich was caused in part by the "excellent work carried on in the city," he said.

In fact, the city and Esquimalt have been so successful in their intensive extermination program that Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy, medical health officer for the Victoria-Esquimalt health department, Friday claimed virtual victory over rodents.

Of more concern now to health unit officials, rather than how the rats got into Saanich in the first place, is the question of what is to be done about it.

At the present time, the Saanich health department delivers rat bait to a complainant and instructs him on how to scatter it about his yard.

But, crafty rats are known to scout a whole neighborhood for food sources and bait placed on a single property often has little effect, said Mr. Watts.

"We hope to get a full program started about the first of June—when enough supplies are laid in for the big drive—in which whole areas will be cleaned out around properties where complaints are received," he said.

The sanitary inspector also endorsed a recommendation by a spokesman for a city exterminating firm that householders should not throw kitchen scraps into the backyard compost heap.

"If people would keep kitchen scraps out of the compost heaps, half the problem would be solved," said Mr. Watts. "Rats follow people, and wherever there's food, you'll always find rats."

But Not on May 19

As Scheduled

All Ratepayers May Vote On Downtown Mall Bylaw

Another Delay Necessary

All city property owners and not just those in the central business district may still be asked to vote on the downtown parking mall bylaw — but in any event the vote won't be held as scheduled May 19.

Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell yesterday confirmed the bylaw drawn up by city council hasn't yet been approved by the department of municipal affairs. Ten days must elapse from advertisement of the bylaw, once it has been approved, to the polling date. The deadline for a May 19 vote passed Monday.

REHASHED SOON

Mr. Dowell indicated the whole question of who should vote on the bylaw will be rehashed by council sometime in the next two weeks.

Failure to obtain approval of the bylaw earlier resulted in postponement of the vote from May 5. At that time city officials said a technical hitch had to be ironed out. And a new date was set for May 19.

SO MUCH WRONG

A provincial government official, however, said yesterday there was so much wrong with the bylaw submitted for consideration by the department that it had to go back to the city to be rewritten.

The official pointed out no revised bylaw is now in the hands of the government for consideration.

Acting Mayor Dowell said city officials are still working with the government department in an effort to produce an acceptable draft of the bylaw.

EVERY EFFORT

He termed the delay "unfortunate" and said every effort was being made to put the bylaw to a vote so the mall project could start.

He added: "It is now just a question of council deciding if the vote is to be put to the downtown area alone or to the whole area."

REOPEN ISSUE

Acting Mayor Dowell said council would reopen the issue—after previously making a decision to let only those property owners in the central business district decide the fate of the money bylaw—because the government refused to approve the bylaw "in the way we want it."

It's unlikely any decision on a new date for submitting the bylaw, and who is to vote on it, will be made at Thursday's meeting of city council. Mayor Percy Scurrah is in Chicago attending an international mayors' convention and isn't due back at city hall until Monday.

Oak Bay Meeting

Macfarlane to Carry Banner for Liberals

* * *

ALAN B. MACFARLANE

Alan B. Macfarlane, 36, a city lawyer, was named Liberal candidate for the provincial riding of Oak Bay at a nominating meeting last night where he was unopposed.

Some 70 persons attended the nominating meeting held in the Oak Bay municipal hall. The seat was left vacant by the death of Archie Gibbs, long-time Liberal member for the riding.

NOMINATION

Mr. Macfarlane's nomination was entered by Hon. R. W. Mayhew and seconded by Mrs. P. A. Gibbs.

He hit out at "government by sensation and spectacle" and told the audience "I am a candidate only because as an ordinary citizen I can no longer . . . stomach the sort of thing that Bennett and Social Credit are handing out to this province."

BLACK-TOP

Liberal leader Ray Perrault said the government stands for a "black-top society" where the road building covers a nultitude of sins. Liberals will "help people first," he said.

Mr. Perrault said there is a "special trend" toward Liberalism among young people throughout B.C. There is also a growing number of business leaders joining the party, he said.

DARK HORSE

He told party members attending the nominating meeting here the Liberal party is being tipped as the "dark horse in tthe next provincial election" but he warned "we have a fight on our hands."

George Gregory, Liberal MLA for Victoria, predicted an election to fill the Oak Bay seat would be called by October "if not sooner."

Victorian with UN Getting New Post

Maj. H. W. King of Victoria will become general staff officer at headquarters, New Brunswick area, at Fredericton next September.

He now is serving with the United Nations truce supervisory organization in the Middle East.

Periodic Disposal

New Law May Ease Body Ash Problem

A storage problem created in B.C. funeral homes and crematoriums by unclaimed remains of cremated bodies may be solved by legislation allowing disposal of the ashes, it was indicated here yesterday.

Dr. H. F. Angus, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, told a cemetery hearing yesterday funeral homes and crematoriums might be encouraged to create regulations whereby unclaimed remains could be disposed of after three months.

Alternatively, he added, such institutions might be able to solve the storage problem by applying to the PUC once each year for consent to dispose of unclaimed ashes.

He said unclaimed remains pose a problem in Victoria and Vancouver.

At the present time there is no provision for disposal, a spokesman for funeral homes said later.

Ashes being stored in Victoria and still awaiting claimants date back nearly 50 years, he stated.

CHARGE HEARD

Earlier yesterday the PUC heard a charge from counsel for a local monument works that some cemeteries have regulations which favor an American grave marker manufacturer.

Louis F. Lindholm, counsel for Mortimer's Monumental Works, said that regulations at Hatley Memorial Gardens here practically exclude all grave markers but those manufactured by the Jas. H. Matthews Co. of Pittsburgh.

But he said monument dealers are not charging a conspiracy on the part of cemetery operators.

OUT OF BUSINESS

A brief submitted by Mr. Lindholm on behalf of his client urged that cemeteries get out of the grave marker business and leave this to the monument firms.

Lawyer Allan Cox, counsel for Colwood Cemeteries, owners of Hatley Gardens, denied the charge that the American firm is favored over all others and indicated that the products of other firms would be used if they were competitive in price and quality.

$2,952 Bid Accepted For Land

The provincial government yesterday accepted a bid that was $48 less than the top bid on a piece of land adjoining the new Swartz Bay ferry approach road.

A $2,952 bid for 3.28 acres of land was submitted by G. B. Sterne, a garage owner who wants the land to build a new garage. The new road location leaves his present garage 200 yards short of the highway.

Mel Baldwin, of Sidney, who bid $3,000 for the land said he wanted it for speculation.

Ys to Talk Merger

A proposal to amalgamate the YMCA and the YWCA, another step in a long-term plan for a new building to house both organizations, will come up today at a meeting of YMCA directors.

Saanich Set to Buy Civic Centre Site

Coun. Leslie Passmore was the sole opponent to last night's passage by Saanich council of a bylaw authorizing transfer of $33,000 from the reverted lands sale fund for the purchase of six acres of land between Douglas Street and Swan Lake, at the site of the proposed new municipal centre.

The bylaw was passed by a 6-1 vote.

In opposing the first step towards obtaining land for a new municipal hall, Coun. Passmore said he doesn't believe that council is justified in spending the money without approval of the ratepayers.

He believes that a referendum should be held first to determine the support of the taxpayers on such a major undertaking.

Mount Douglas High

Trustee to Open $170,000 Wing

Parents and friends are invited to attend an "open house" at Mount Douglas High School, starting at 1 p.m. today, marking the official opening of the new $170,000 seven-room addition.

Until 2 p.m., visitors will see classes in progress in the new home economics, industrial arts, and science rooms, as well as in classrooms throughout the school.

This will be followed by an assembly attended by more than 3,000 students and visitors in the auditorium scheduled for 2 p.m. The school band and choir will provide entertainment.

Official opening of the addition will be performed by Trustee Walter Thomson. About 150 visitors are expected to attend.

Saanich Rate Seems Sure

Saanich council last night approved first three readings of its 1960 budget, backing up indications of a mill-rate increase of slightly under 10 per cent over last year, or new taxes of $39.95 per $1,000 taxable assessment for homeowners in school district 61 and $41.65 for those in district 63.

Live in Esquimalt? —Mow That Grass

Esquimalt council will study the question of whether legal action can be taken against householders who fail to mow the grass on public boulevards fronting their properties.

Coun. Vincent Rush told council Monday that it was unfair for some persons to let the grass grow "four or five feet high" after the municipality has spent thousands of dollars in beautifying some of its thoroughfares.

Lots For Vets

A $40,000, 18-lot housing development site off an extension of Rock Heights Avenue will be handed over in about a month by Esquimalt municipality to the Veterans' Land Act office.

The subdivision will be available for Second World War or Korean War veterans who want city lots instead of acreage and who will build their own homes, a VLA spokesman said yesterday.

Work was carried on all winter in clearing the heavily-wooded, high ground facing out over Gorge Vale Golf Club and the Gorge area.

Esquimalt will provide all service for the area such as installation of paving, sidewalks, lighting, sewerage and water mains.

Old Sawmill Fire-Razed

Fire razed an old, unused sawmill on Tomlinson Road, Central Saanich, yesterday, causing an estimated $1,000 damage.

Known locally as Carson's mill, the building had not been in use since 1954.

The alarm was turned in at 4.45 a.m. yesterday.

Nearly Hit Two Tots

Watch Your Children Shaken Driver Asks

A city motorist who came within six inches of running down two small children on Bay Street, yesterday made a plea for parents who live beside busy thoroughfares to keep more careful watch over their youngsters.

Donald Bacon, 1240 Acton, said that two toddlers, about three and four years old, ran in front of his car in the 1400 block Bay Street.

"Luckily enough, I have good brakes. I missed them by about six inches. I was six inches short of killing them," he said.

Although he parked his car, and went to a nearby home and reported the near-accident to city police, he said yesterday that he felt it was his duty to point out to parents the dangers of letting their young children run unattended beside busy streets.

"Possibly some child will have to die before the lesson is actually learned," he said. "I hope I can prevent that by telling my story, but if it still happens I'll know that I at least tried to do my bit."

Struck by Bouncing Car

Freak Traffic Accident Injures Oak Bay Girl

A 13-year-old Oak Bay school girl was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday with head injuries following a freak traffic accident on Monterey near Woodlawn Crescent.

Condition of the girl, Angela Jones, 2144 Quimper, was described as satisfactory last night by hospital officials.

Police said she was walking along the sidewalk when a car driven by James W. Powell, 18, 638 Monterey, struck her after hitting and breaking off a telephone pole.

The car had apparently gone out of control.

Witnesses at the scene said she was struck and thrown into the street when the car swung after striking the pole.

Damage to the car was described as light.

"If she had only been a few feet away she would have been safe," an unidentified witness said.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the 17-year-old boy who signed himself "Horrible Sight" could have been written by me several years ago. A person who has not suffered the hell in a nutshell of severe acne can't imagine the agony.

Your advice to see a skin specialist was excellent, but I'm sure you've never had acne, Ann Landers,. or you would have carried it one step further. More important than anything else, is to develop the right attitude so that acne doesn't murder a teenager's confidence and make him a recluse.

To all teenagers with acne I would like to say this: Follow your doctor's orders but assume the acne is going to be with you for a long time. Then make up your mind to fight back.

Best Friend-Getters

Don't hide. Be a leader if it kills you. Work like a Trojan to get good grades, participate in sports, dramatics, debate and music. Be as fine a person as you know how. The old-fashioned virtues, loyalty, honesty, a no-gossip program and a lively sense of humor are still the best friend-getters known to man.

I'm certain now that my acne served a very useful purpose. I knew I couldn't depend on my looks to get me places, so I had to develop personality, build character and demonstrate leadership qualities if I wanted to amount to anything.

So, please, Ann, tell the teens who are suffering from this miserable skin curse to put it to work for them. When they stop thinking of themselves as "Horrible Sights"—so will everyone else.—EX-NAVAL OFFICER.

* * *

Dear Ex: Many thanks for those words of wisdom. I hope the thousands of kids who are acne victims will clip this column and look at it from time to time when they need encouragement.

Bites the Children

Dear Ann: Our neighbor has a German shepherd which is the meanest animal I've ever seen. He has bitten two children in the neighborhood and nipped my small son twice. The mailman is afraid to deliver the mail to the house. Whenever we complain to the owners they say, "Prince is very gentle. The children must have teased him."

At night the dog howls and barks. During the day he runs all over my tulips and iris. What can I do about this beast?—S.S.S.

Dear S.S.S.: In most cities it's against the law for dogs to be running loose. Call the police department and find out if the dog should be on a leash. If they are breaking the law, tell them and give them a chance to abide by the regulations. If they ignore the law after that, report them.

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Wedding Cake Made at Home

By LOUISE MOORE

For the girl whose wedding looms up in June, here is a perfectly beauteous wedding cake that Mom can make with the greatest of ease. By making it at home you can afford the extra cost of having a confectioner frost and do the decorating.

Use only the freshest of ingredients — good butter and fresh eggs, the best of fruits and nuts and peel that is moist and nicely shredded.

WEDDING CAKE

Prepare fruits and nuts.

Wash thoroughly and dry: 2 pounds seedless raisins, 1 pound sultanas, 1 pound currants.

Put into large bowl and add: 1 pound dates stoned and sliced, ½ pound shredded citron peel, 1 pound mixed peel chopped, 1 pound glazed cherries cut in thirds, ¼ pound almonds blanched and split in halves, ½ pound pecans or walnuts sliced.

Pour over 1 cup brandy and let stand overnight, covered.

Into a large mixing bowl put 1 pound soft butter but don't have it oily—just soft enough to cream.

Gradually beat in 2½ cups brown sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add 1 cup corn syrup, ½ tsp. vanilla and ½ tsp. almond flavoring or rose water and beat thoroughly.

Beat 12 good sized eggs until light and add a little at a time to creamed mixture, beating thoroughly between each addition.

Put into sifter: 5 cups unsifted pastry flour, ¼ tsp. baking soda, 3 tsp. mace, ½ tsp. each cinnamon and cloves.

Sift three times.

Add ¼ cup pineapple juice or juice from maraschinos, alternately with the sifted dry ingredients to the creamed mixture, beginning and ending with the dry ingredients. Mix well but lightly.

Fold in the fruits and any brandy left in the bowl which fruit has not absorbed.

Line the three square Christmas cake tins with three thicknesses of heavy brown paper well buttered and having paper come up 1 inch above edge of pans.

Fill pans ¾ full or a little more if you like deeper cakes. There should be enough left to make a third 8 x 8-inch cake which can be cut ready to serve before the reception gets under way.

Bake at 275F. allowing 4 to 5 hours for the largest cake; 3 to 3½ for the second size, and 2 to 2½ hours for the smallest cake.

As ovens differ test your cakes and when batter does not adhere to cake tester they are done. Don't overbake or underbake. Watch cakes carefully.

A pan of hot water set on bottom of oven will prevent cakes from burning on bottom and a layer of salt on cookie tins on which cakes are set also prevents a hard crust on bottom of cakes.

JELLY ROLL CAKES

Cut a baker's or homemade sponge or angel food cake into ¼ inch slices. Cut slices in strips approximately 3 inches by 1½ inches. Spread each strip with raspberry jam or cranberry jelly. Roll up into tiny jelly rolls. Frost with butter icing. Roll in coconut or chopped nuts.

Tips for Parents

Effort Necessary For Satisfaction

By HELEN R. HEWSON

There are some individuals who pass along a relatively smooth path as they journey from childhood to maturity. There are of course difficulties to be overcome, problems to be faced and solved, but progress is not threatened by major road blocks.

Others can look back to well-defined crises in their lives, to situations that demanded tremendous effort and were often accompanied by acute emotional distress.

William Golding, the English novelist, belongs to the latter group and he described one of these critical moments in a recent radio talk.

* * *

The Rubicon of his reminiscences was Latin grammar, a subject he must master in order to follow the educational path that was traditionally right for a boy of his background. He describes his "divinatory skill in translation but the grammar seemed related to nothing in my universe and I left it alone."

This "leaving it alone," turning away from difficult and dimly understood situations, is not surprising in the young and inexperienced.

It is surprising, and disturbing too, to find parents and teachers who encourage the easy way out.

We all need a taste of success and a sense of achievement to spur us along. But wrapped up in that word "achievement" is effort, determination, persistence.

The truly satisfying sense of achievement comes from the effort as much as from the goal achieved.

Golding's comment, "I must do this thing, and grow up," marks a big moment, a step forward on his road to maturity.

There are times in the lives of our children when we must insist that they take this step.

Opening lead: ♡A

The pressure of "it might have been" makes team-of-four competition gruelling. Each hand is played twice. After your side has played, let us say, the North-South hands, the board goes to the other table where the other half of your team sits East-West. So, if you have played the hand for a bad result, you try to figure out what is going to happen at the other table, and how much you stand to lose. Today's hand involved a grand slam swing potential—with a surprising result.

The bidding is shown as it went the first time this hand was played. Only six teams remained in the 1960 Vanderbilt, and a team captained by Weldemar Von Zedtwitz was meeting a team captained by Richard Freeman. The latter's pair held the North-South cards here. Most players would open the East hand with one club. East's decision to pass initially was a blow from which he never recovered.

Against the four-spade doubled contract, West led the heart ace and shifted to a diamond. East won with the ace and could have defeated the hand by giving his partner a heart ruff. But West's two no-trump bid (though absolutely correct) blinded East to the possibility that the heart ace was a singleton. He continued leading diamonds, and declarer ruffed. As a result, South lost only one heart trick, one spade (West's king) and one diamond.

Allowing the opponents to make the doubled contract cost 790 points. But this did not appear to be the biggest loss, for it could be seen that East-West could make seven clubs their way of the table for a plus score of 2,140. You may imagine that the Von Zedtwitz pair thought they had suffered a huge loss over what would happen at the other table. What did happen is described here tomorrow.

Big Producer

'Dough' Not First With Author O'Hara

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—Because of high taxes and a fear of wearing out their welcome with the public, some major novelists now feel it pays to produce a book only every five years.

But author John O'Hara, with one novel (Ourselves to Know) now high on the best-seller list, has already completed another—and is planning a third which he feels will be the best of his life.

"I'm working harder than I ever did, and producing more," he said. "I'm 55, and I want to write what's in me.

★ ★ ★

"I want to get it done, even though financially it's better to put out one every five years. The dough isn't the main consideration with me, and never has been."

Anyone who knows O'Hara knows this is true. Although he once was one of the greatest literary playboys of his day, he always also was recognized as one of its most earnest craftsmen. He ranks with his own writing heroes—Hemingway, Faulkner, Fitzgerald and Steinbeck.

"I've been dry now for nearly seven years," remarked O'Hara, a big fellow who earlier was a quart-a-day athlete. He now fuels his creative efforts with 20 demi-tasses of coffee daily.

Despite a painful back ailment, he hammers four or five hours nightly at his 1940 typewriter, turning out 2,000 words or more. A rollcall of 17 books is one testament to his industry.

A tea and prizegiving yesterday marked the close of the sports season for a Victoria group, with prizes presented for cribbage, alley bowling and table bowling. Not too unusual—except that all participants are members of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Highlight of the affair was presentation to Mrs. Janet Carr, CNIB Villas, of the Hornsby-Long trophy, emblematic of the cribbage championship of British Columbia.

This trophy, first presented this year, was inaugurated by two of the Victoria CNIB players, and presented by H. Alex Main, sales representative of Trans-Canada Air Lines.

Other sightless trophy winners were Charles Hornsby, Thomas Long and Clarence Hyde.

Treasures in the Attic

Skull, Elephant Tails Found In Historic Ontario House

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The 130-year-old Eldon House, given to the city of London as a historic site in January, has proven to be a treasure chest.

Contents range from rare Oriental and African curios to the macabre — the bleached skull of the first man hanged in London.

SINGLE FAMILY

The house, on an 11-acre site, is the city's oldest. It was built by Capt. John Harris and occupied by the Harris family until the death last December of Miss Amelia Harris.

Surviving members of the family offered it to the city, and some items in it to the Royal Ontario Museum.

Through the years members of the family returned from trips abroad with mementos and these eventually found their way to the attic.

The skull of Cornelius Alverson Burleigh probably has the most interesting story. He was hanged in 1830—hanged twice, in fact, because the rope broke on the first try.

On the day of the hanging, Burleigh's skull was given to a young Yale University student, Orson Squires Fowler, who used it that night in a lecture on phrenology-study of the shape of the human head.

He toured the world for 50 years using Burleigh's skull as his chief prop, then gave it to the Harris family on a return trip to London in 1880.

Col. Ronald Harris, an engineer on the East African coast from 1901 to 1908, brought back such things as ornately carved wooden pillows and elepant tails.

Oriental curios include mandarin generals' coats, a skirt made of four-inch ribbons adorned with bells and a five-foot-long hat complete with a queue of human hair.

38,000 Pounds

First Halibut Unloaded At City Plant

First two loads of halibut caught this year of the west coast of Vancouver Island, weighing a total of 38,000 pounds, were unloaded this week at the B.C. Packers' Ogden Point plant.

Capt. George Hillier, who fishes out of Ucluelet with the Hillier Queen, sold 26,000 pounds, and William Markin, who skippers the Dodie M. out of Port Alberni, sold 12,000 pounds.

Prices range from 16 to 20 cents per pound, according to grade.

The halibut season on the west coast of the Island and in Hecate Strait opened May 1. Fishing in the Bering Sea area and western Alaska opened early in April.

Above Vancouver

Taxi Operators Seek Rate Hike

Victoria taxi operators have petitioned city council to grant them rates higher than those charged in Vancouver.

At present operators in both Victoria and Vancouver charge 55 cents for the first one-third of a mile and 10 cents for each additional one-third of a mile. This is 75 cents for the first mile and 30 cents for each additional mile.

10 SIGNED

The petition, signed by 10 city operators, asks for an increase to 50 cents for the first ¼-mile and 10 cents for each additional ¼-mile. This is 80 cents for the first mile and 40 cents for each additional mile.

Only difference between Victoria and Vancouver rates at present is in the charge for waiting time. Victoria operators charge $3 an hour and Vancouver drivers $4 an hour. The petition to city hall here asks for an increase in the charge for waiting time—to $4 an hour.

RATES COMPARED

Figures comparing the rates in Victoria, Vancouver and a number of other West Coast cities are included in the petition.

The petition says the increases are sought because of rising costs. The last increase granted was made in 1957, the petition adds—the only one in 10 years.

Operators claimed that the cost of vehicles has risen 14.6 per cent since 1957 and drivers' wages have risen 35 per cent.

Sound Generators

Reds Use Thunder To Control Weather

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Russians have claimed partial success in making rain and dissipating fog with artifical thunder, it was disclosed last week.

Information on the Soviet experiments was contained in a translated version of a Russian report distributed here by the commerce department.

The report told of weather research being carried out on the slopes of 18,468-foot-high Elbrus, tallest peak in the Caucasus Mountains.

The report said the mountain side research has "only partially succeeded" so far, although laboratory experiments in dissipating artificial fog with sound waves were completely successful.

Both U.S. and Soviet scientists have carried out rain-making research involving the sprinkling of clouds with silver iodide, dry ice or other materials that will hasten condensation. Work also has been done in this country toward eliminating fog with sound.

The Soviet report said scientists set up powerful sound generators with loudspeakers more than nine square yards in area at the mouth.

As dense fog shrouds the slopes of Mt. Elbrus, the generators are turned on and a steady low-pitched sound like the rumble of thunder reverberates between the valley walls.

Garden Notes

Cukes in 58 Days!

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

As you have probably gathered from my last few columns, I am pretty enthusiastic over the New Zealand cucumber "Crystal Apple," and I am most anxious that every reader who has a few feet of space to spare in his backyard should give it a try this year. If you have no vegetable plot and nothing in your back grounds but lawn and flowers, use the vines of the New Zealand cucumber to cover the back fence.

This variety from "down under" is a cucumber of extraordinary vigor and speed of growth, and you can start sinking your teeth in the crisp white flesh of these apple-shaped cukes in about 58 days after the seeds go into the ground.

* * *

Here is a variety which the ordinary backyard gardener can just stick in the soil without any coddling or fussing. If you sow it under hotkaps or even under up-ended jam jars this month, you can start picking cucumbers for the table and for making pickles around the middle of July and right on continuously well into the fall.

Some folks have been asking me if these seeds should be given the protection of a greenhouse or cold frame during their germinating period. There is no law against sowing a few in fibre pots filled with rich but sandy soil, one seed to the pot, but actually this isn't the least bit necessary. Unlike the English frame varieties like Long Green and Telegraph, the New Zealand plants do just as well when the seeds are simply shoved in the ground where they are to grow.

* * *

All cucumbers need a lot of good stuff in their growing site, for the fruits tend to acquire a bitter flavor in humus-poor soil. Old rotted manure is ideal but, if you can't get any of this precious commodity, you can make a pretty fair substitute by soaking peat moss in a fertilizer solution. Use any of the high-test soluble fertilizers, two tablespoonfuls to the gallon—double the normal dosage—and after dunking the peat in this, use it just as you would manure.

Prepare your planting stations 18 inches apart in the row by digging a hole a foot deep and a foot across. Throw in a spadeful of manure or a big double handful of the enriched peat moss, then fill up with ordinary rich topsoil. When level with the surface, sow two seeds in each station and cover with a hotkap or a couple of jam jars.

* * *

The two seeds at each planting station should be spaced about six inches apart. If both of them come up, one vine is trained up the garden, the other in the reverse direction and, as the vines make about six feet of growth, the total cucumber row will occupy a strip 12 feet wide and will produce a whale of a lot of cucumbers.

While these New Zealand seeds test better than 90 per cent viable in germination trials, there is always the possibility that one of them won't come up and will leave a blank in the row. To take care of this eventuality, sow a few seeds in a spare planting station to raise spare plants for transplanting to fill up the gaps.

If you didn't get around to sending for your free seeds yet, better get that letter away now, or use the attached coupon. And please, don't forget to enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Refused Invitation — Relentless Grudge

'Ike Snubbed Me' Says Harry

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harry S. Truman recalled yesterday that Dwight D. Eisenhower thought someone was trying to embarrass him by ordering Maj. John Eisenhower home from Korea for his father's inauguration.

"I thought this was a curious reaction," wrote Truman, who had issued the order himself. "I could only account for it on the ground that this was a manifestation of hostility toward me."

"The Day Ike Snubbed Me" is the title of the Look Magazine article in which Truman recalled the incidents of that 1953 inauguration day. It is excerpted from Truman's post-presidential memoirs, "Mr. Citizen," which will be published in book form in June.

With an appearance of non-partisanship, the next instalment is titled: "Stevenson Let Me Down."

* * *

The inaugural snubs began with the Eisenhowers' refusal of the Trumans' invitation to a White House lunch before the ceremony. Then Eisenhower refused to leave the car when it stopped at the White House for Truman, making him, Truman wrote, only the third president in history who has failed to call on his predecessor at that time, and the only one who refused to do so.

Franklin D. Roosevelt "was unable to get out of his car and walk up the steps of the White House to call on outgoing President Herbert Hoover," because of his physical condition, Truman wrote. Thomas Jefferson hadn't been able to call because his predecessor, John Adams, "had left the White House in an ill temper the previous midnight just to avoid riding with Jefferson."

* * *

Truman attributed the snubs to the fact that "I had been provoked to lecture candidate Eisenhower during the 1952 campaign for what I considered his failure to uphold the honor of Gen. George C. Marshall, who had been vilified as a front man for traitors by two Republican senators . . ."

"What was on my mind that inauguration day, and has been since then, was regret that relentless grudges should so color the thinking and actions of men in trusted leadership," Truman wrote.

He recalled his own action in bringing the "unique abilities" of Herbert Hoover back into government after Hoover's estrangement from the political scene during the Roosevelt administration, and their spontaneous formation of a "Former Presidents' Club" as they parted on Eisenhower's inauguration day.

* * *

"Without any formality, we have managed to keep in touch with each other since," Truman wrote. "Despite our basic political differences, we have respect for each other . . . our republic certainly has grown mature enough for men in high places to rise above petulance, and to subordinate their capriciousness to their obligations as elected officials."

Sheilah Graham Visits Israel

Haifa—City of Future

HAIFA, Israel (NANA)—Jerusalem is the city of the past—and I'll be there tomorrow. Tel Aviv, with its bustling and active modern streets and hotels, is the city of the present. And Haifa, where the "Exodus" company is living, is the city of the future.

* * *

The weather here is like Southern California's and enormous expansion work will soon be started on the old seaport that was flourishing at the time of Saul, David, Solomon, and Jesu of near-by Nazareth. But now Haifa is overflowing with movie stars, and long queues are noticeable every night outside the city's 13 movie houses.

* * *

Eva Marie Saint's "On the Waterfront," which won her and most of the people in it an Oscar, is currently showing at the Gal or Cinema. "I went to see it the other night," Eva Marie told me. "It was strange. I couldn't hear too much. It was in English with French subtitles, but it seemed that everyone in the audience was talking."

* * *

Paul Newman, playing Ari Ben Canaan in "Exodus," almost had his car turned over by enthusiastic autograph seekers. He solved his problem by importing a motor scooter. He offered me a ride on the back of his scooter but I declined and went in a car driven by Sal Mineo.

* * *

Danny Kaye's "Five Pennies" is currently on view here, and even though the movie was not reviewed too favorably, Danny is very popular. He has made several visits to Israel. The theatre is packed every night. "I saw him," a middle-aged Israeli told me breathlessly, adding, "and he winked at me!"

* * *

Michael Wager, who plays David in "Exodus," was in Israel during its fight for independence, and he fought for the Israelis. "One of my jobs was to transmit news to and from the front," Wager recalled. "I carried my transmitter in a suitcase. I had some narrow escapes."

* * *

I remarked to Sal Mineo, who plays Dov, that he looked much thinner. He is. "I lost 10 pounds for the role," he told me. The lost poundage makes him very attractive.

* * *

Fourteen-year-old Jill Hayworth, blonde, slender and cute, plays Karen, the girl befriended in the story by Kitty—Eva Marie Saint, whose ultra blondness causes the swarthy Arab extras to drool. Jill has had a problem. One scene has her diving into the water. "I couldn't swim before I came to Israel," she told me. "And I'm so scared of diving."

* * *

Alexandra Stewart, not long ago a Canadian debutante and also blonde—but not as much so as Eva or Jill—is playing Jordana, the tempestuous sister of hero Ari Ben Canaan. She is extremely beautiful, and it wouldn't surprise me to see her turn up in a movie in Hollywood.

* * *

The biggest scene in "Exodus" has Lee J. Cobb, on a balcony, telling the crowd for which 20,000 extras will be used that the United Nations has voted for partition, which means the establishment of the State of Israel.

* * *

"How true was the Leon Uris book to the actual events?" I asked a resident who came to Israel in 1928. "Two-thirds true," I was told, "the rest is romance." I enjoyed the book enormously, and hope the film will be as good.

Convicts Find Key To Rehabilitation?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Thieves who are robbing parking meters of about $150 a day by striking just before regular collectors arrive apparently are getting their keys from Oakalla prison.

William Anthony, meter collection official, says he learned the keys may have been made in Oakalla from a smuggled-in sample, and taken out by discharged prisoners.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort
Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

First-Rank Students Top University Lists

Five Greater Victoria students, well known for previous high scholastic standings, headed a list of more than 550 students who recently wrote year-end examinations in the faculty of arts and science at Victoria University.

High-ranking students are C. Anita Harold, 201 Russell, leader in the first year with an average of 90.3 per cent; Margaret Lendrum, 247 Government, second with 89.7; John L. Scadding, 1204 Clover, leader in the second year with 95.1 per cent; Michiel Horn, 523 Harbinger, second with 94.4; Robert Taylor, 2795 Foul Bay, leader in the third year with 92.3 per cent, and David Alexander of Nanaimo, second with 87.3.

HIGHEST MARKS

Robert Bickell of Cobble Hill chalked up the highest marks in the faculty of commerce and business administration with an average of 77.6 per cent.

The five Victoria scholars all plan to carry on studies next fall at the University of British Columbia.

Eighteen-year-old Miss Harold is getting set for a summer tour of Europe.

She won the Victoria district scholarship when she graduated from Mount View High School last year.

SECOND STUDENT

John Scadding, 1204 Clover, 19, second among first students in 1959, was winner of the Matilda Horsepool scholarship in 1958 and Spencer's Stores scholarship and P. H. B. Dawson bursary in 1959.

Now working at Quesnel, he plans to major in economics this fall at UBC.

Michiel Horn, 20, who led first-year students in 1959, is holder of the Kiwanis and Percy Elliott scholarships and plans to enter third-year arts at UBC this fall.

Louw Lashes Out At U.K. Critics

LONDON (UPI) — South African External Affairs Minister Eric Louw said yesterday that his country's relations with Britain will be seriously disturbed if severe criticism of South Africa is permitted to continue unchecked here.

He said attacks on South Africa from every quarter are increasing "in bitterness and intensity."

These attacks, he said, are "based on ignorance of South Africa and its peoples, and actuated not only by prejudice, but only too often by malice."

Louw criticized the House of Commons for taking "the unprecedented step of discussing and condemning, by a unanimous vote, the domestic policies of a fellow-member of the Commnowealth.

"This was the thanks," he said, "that South Africa received for aid rendered to Britain in past years."

Prelate's Plea

Help Us Remain Friends

LONDON (Reuters) — The Archbishop of Canterbury, speaking on the South African racial issue, yesterday urged the government there to "do something, however small, to relieve the consciences of its friends."

Dr. Geoffrey Fisher noted before an Anglican Church meeting here that the South African government "is insisting that it must bear its own burden, and indeed it must."

"The tragedy is that so far they have seemed to pay little or no regard to the burdens which they are imposing upon the hearts and consciences and political principles of those who are their brethren in the British Commonwealth, in culture, in Christian faith and in common humanity."

The meeting uanimously passed a resolution declaring that it believed the policy of racial segregation to be contrary to the purpose of God.

Press Rapped On Bomarc

LAWRENCETOWN, N.S. (CP)—Revenue Minister Nowlan criticized Canada's press Tuesday for its stand on the Bomarc missile issue, saying the press was "misinformed, prejudiced and biased," and criticism of Defence Minister Pearkes was unfair.

Philip Nearly 'Dots' Ump —Or So He Says in Speech

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip, Britain's best-known polo player, sheds his royal dignity a bit when he canters around the field.

Last weekend, at a match in Windsor Great Park, the umpire penalized him for a foul. And Queen Elizabeth's husband felt like socking the guy good and hard.

He said so at a luncheon given by the Lord Mayor of London Monday.

"I had the greatest difficulty in restraining myself from dotting the umpire," the prince said.

The umpire—Maj.-Gen. Claude Pert, 61—isn't worried.

"Prince Philip was just joking," he said. "He always takes my decisions like a sportsman. He's a charming fellow and a very good player."

U.S. Pledges Defence of Allies In Reply to Russian Threat

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Spy Plane Pilot Will Face Trial

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States pledged Tuesday to go to the aid of its allies which might be attacked by Russia for allowing American spy planes to use their air bases.

At the same time the state department accused Soviet Premier Khrushchev of waging a campaign of threats and intimidation against small countries innocent of any wrong-doing.

LANDING POINTS

The state department was replying to Khrushchev's threat to aim Soviet rockets against any foreign bases which serve as takeoff or landing points for intelligence flights into Russia. "There should be no doubt that the United States will honor these defence treaty commitments," the department said in a statement.

The statement came amid these other developments in the war of words over the American spy plane downed in Russia May 1:

BROUGHT TO TRIAL

1. Russia indicated in a note to the United States that the captured pilot, 30-year-old Francis G. Powers, would be brought to trial.

2. Chairman Clarence Cannon (Dem., Mo.) of the House of Representatives appropriations committee reported U.S. intelligence planes have ranged as far as 1,300 miles inside Russia in a series of espionage flights since 1946.

NOT SHOT DOWN

Cannon, who heard central intelligence chief Allen Dulles at a secret briefing Monday, said the high altitude U-2 plane had not been shot down by a Soviet rocket as Khrushchev claimed but was forced down by "some unforeseen and unavoidable mechanical or physiological defect."

3. The state department assured Japan that future U-2 flights from Japanese bases would be "utilized only for legitimate and normal purposes of weather observation."

QUIETING STORM

This assurance was clearly aimed at quieting the storm in the Japanese Diet which is considering radification of a Japanese-American security treaty.

In Moscow the Soviet Union notified the United States Tuesday that Francis G. Powers, pilot of the American spy plane downed deep inside Russia on May Day, "will be brought to account under the laws of the Soviet state."

AFTER CONFERENCE

This indication that the pilot may undergo a trial for espionage, probably not long after the end of the summit conference, was contained in a stiff protest delivered through the U.S. Embassy.

The Soviet government protested what it called the espionage reconnaissance flight of Powers' high-flying Lockheed U-2 jet.

SEEK INTERVIEW

The United States countered with a request in a note of its own for permission for an embassy officer to interview Powers who is reported by the Russians to have confessed he was spying.

"CALCULATED POLICY"

It declared that "hostile acts of American aviation which have taken place numerous times in relation to the Soviet Union are not simply the result of the activity of the military command of the U.S.A. in various areas but are an expression of a calculated U.S.A. policy."

SEN. JOHN KENNEDY

Don't-Spy Story Denied

OTTAWA (UPI)— External Affairs Minister Green Tuesday branded as "wild speculation" a report that Canada formally asked the U.S. to stop spy flights over Russia.

Green told the Commons Canada's position has been made known to the U.S. through "official channels." He had said Monday incidents like the U.S. 'spy plane' in Russia could trigger a nuclear war.

Hubby 'Not Spy'

"My husband is not a spy and he is not engaged in espionage activity," Barbara Powers insisted yesterday although she conceded he told her little about his work. "I can only wait and hope," she said.

Stop Rum For Navy MP Urges

OTTAWA (CP) — John Taylor, Progressive Conservative MP for Vancouver Burrard, says the navy's rum ration should be eliminated to pay for Canadian participation in the Olympic Games. The rum costs $300,000 a year.

West Virginia

Kennedy Wins, Humphrey Quits

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts won Tuesday's West Virginia primary election, rocketing him within reach of the Democratic presidential nomination.

In a demonstration that a Roman Catholic can carry a state where only 4.5 per cent of the residents are of his faith, Kennedy trounced Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, a Congregationalist.

Humphrey conceded early today that Kennedy had won the primary, and announced that he is dropping out of the race for the nomination.

On the basis of incomplete returns, Kennedy was getting about 60 per cent of the total vote.

With one-third of the 2,751 precincts reported, Kennedy had 69,768 votes to 43,748 for Humphrey.

Canada, U.S. Talk Swap

WASHINGTON (CP)—Phillip Taylor, assistant U.S. air secretary, said Tuesday the U.S. Air Force is considering the possibility of acquiring a limited number of Canadian CL-44 cargo planes on the basis that Canada might be willing to engage in a production-sharing swap by buying U.S. fighter planes in exchange.

LONDON (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth flew off Tuesday night for a goodwill visit to the Central African Federation despite outbreaks of Negro mob violence in the northern copper belt area

The Queen saw her mother off at the airport with a cheerful wave. The Queen Mother is due in Southern Rhodesia today.

Disorders in the federation during the weekend resulted in more than 100 Negroes being arrested.

Whites Demand Guns

KITWE, Northern Rhodesia (Reuters)—White settlers demanded gun licences and a government minister spoke of "extermination" Tuesday night as police and Negroes clashed again in this troubled central African British protectorate.

Territorial Minister Rodney Malcolmson told a crowd of 2,000 whites here that Negro leaders of the United National Independent party must be rounded up and said the government was planning the best way to "exterminate such rats."

I May Kick the Habit But My Wife Won't

Colonist reporter Terry Hammond, along with scores of other Victorians, is trying to kick the cigaret habit with the help of the Colonist's recent series of articles by Arthur King. Hammond, a three-pack-a-day "addict," describes another step in his withdrawal.

★ ★ ★

Cigaret Addict's Diary

★ ★ ★

By TERRY HAMMOND

Q-Day minus 10.

Although hundreds of readers seem to have joined me in an effort to kick the cigaret habit, it is with profound regret I report that the only two people I actually launched down the road to lung cancer have steadfastly refused to be saved.

One of these is my wife.

Up to the day we were married she did not smoke at all.

A mere 24 hours later she was up to two packages a day.

It was almost as though she had come under some sudden and severe nervous strain.

I asked our family doctor about it.

CARPS AT BILL

"It is almost as though she has come under some sudden and severe nervous strain," he said. (This cost me $8 and as any fool can see is practically identical with my own diagnosis).

Anyway, she does not propose to stop smoking.

STRAIGHT ANSWER

I thought she put it pretty succinctly last night when she said "I do not even propose to discuss it."

The other person I lured into the smoking fold was a real catch. He is a former athlete of some renown and his rapid deterioration during the three years since he became a chain smoker one day is sickening to behold.

DRAMATIC NEWS

He accompanied me on a 300-mile round-trip drive in the interior one time, and would not be smoking to this day if my wife had not waited until we were 150 miles out before deciding it was time to have our second child.

In true story-book tradition I started lighting one cigaret after another as soon as I got the news and turned the car around.

EXCEEDING, ETC.

The roads were exceedingly twisty, exceedingly icy, and we were going exceedingly quickly, mostly sideways.

After a couple of near misses with large trees alongside the road while lighting cigarets, this fellow offered to light them for me.

I shouldn't really say he just offered to light them, he actually pleaded with me to allow him to light them.

STILL AT IT

We were only half way back when I suddenly saw that instead of lighting one cigaret at a time, he was lighting three and smoking two of them himself. It is now three years later and he has never stopped.

As it turned out though, there really wasn't any hurry after all. Our second child wasn't born until three weeks later.

Result of night school courses taken by Victoria nudist Albert Young is cabin he is building at Sol Sante Club near Shawnigan Lake for himself.—(Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

No Longer Bound by Convention — Reporter Bound for Convention

All-Togetherness Nudes Prudes

By CHARLES THOMPSON

DUNCAN — We got this invite to the Nudist Club so we went, the wife and myself and our worst fears—that we would be asked to disrobe.

And we came to the decision after having a look around, at the landscape and such, that nudists are prudists.

I mean, so they wander around as most families do in the privacy of their own home. Only they have togetherness, at the club, in the all togetherness.

Several hours wandering over part of the Sol Sante Club's 172 acres of lush park land was enough to give us what you might call, say, a good start on a tan.

"There has been a lot of misunderstanding about nudism in this country," said our guide (and shadow) Walter Hannam, 22 Midwood Road, Victoria. He proceeded to tell us why.

I admit even I'm human to a certain degree. But this was a shattering experience. Even the wife had not too glorious ideas. Mine were so-so, you might say.

Well, there weren't many members walking around in their birthday suits. We were happy we were not asked to. There were few members about, we suspect, because they had been warned we would be.

Anyway, I would have pinned Legion of Merit medals on some of them, if they'd had somewhere to pin them. Fact is, it was cold and they deserved something for their efforts. It was a shivering 55 degrees in the shade, according to their outdoor thermometer.

Now for statistics: Membership is 40 families. Applications are screened by the Secret Service. Walter (everybody calls everyone else by their first name, 'cause it's bad manners to ask a person's last) shows the prospective members around and watches for any shifty-eyed types. If a married man wants to join he must have a note from his wife explaining why she won't. ("We don't want to break up marriages," said our ever-present host.) Members with the fumes (or even one) of alcohol on their breath are asked to leave. Foul-mouthed persons are treated foully. "Undue" familiarity is verboten.

See what I mean? No wonder this crowd (in my opinion) has a small membership. The property, with Little Shawnigan Lake running through it, is a beauty spot. But with those rules . . .

No one we talked to seemed the worse for it. One retired man and wife from Sunny Trails on the Mainland said all they ever do is fish and nudism and nudism and fish. Yes, they like the life fine.

"There's nothing wrong with it," said Albert Young of Victoria, who asked that he be quoted and his name used. "It's good and clean and not what people think."

No one explained what people "think" about nudism, but I think I know.

Anyway, we saw many, happy people sitting down, standing up, fishing, working and what have you. They seemed under control. Neighbors no longer object to the club. Even children no longer sneak under the fence, says Walter, because they soon find out the police are on the club's side.

Even my wife, a blonde who is far from dumb, commented as we left: "I think it is nice and healthy. And they have such nice, cute little cabins."

I'll be going back (that is, if I can control my eyes) and this time in the nude for the Western Canada convention of the Canadian Sunbathing Association on June 24, 25 and 26.

Did you get that, Walter?

All I want to know is where does one pin his press badge.

$1,740,949 Budget

Mill-Rate Up Two For Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI—A record-breaking budget and a 42-mill tax rate bylaw were introduced by finance committee chairman Ald. Fred Weaver at council meeting Monday.

Ald Weaver pointed out that the $1,740,949 budget is within $10,000 of the total. Council was budgeting for a $15,000 surplus in the hopes of bringing the city's cash position back to normal.

Mayor Loran Jordon commented that council would have liked to have held the tax line but the two-mill raise in rates had been unavoidable.

The increase will amount to approximately $6 for the average home owner, Ald. Weaver said.

Major items in the budget are $837,063 for schools, $102,000 for public works, $155,147 for debt charges and $132,680 for social welfare.

In introducing the bylaws Ald. Weaver stated that the budget forecasts a continuation of local improvement sidewalks and sewers and allows for approximately $40,000 worth of street surfacing, which will allow approximately the same amount of work this year as had been done in each of the past few years.

"No major new undertaking is contemplated but we will continue with our program of gradual improvements throughout the city as a whole," he said.

Woman in Race For Post of Chief

DUNCAN — Indian Councillor Louise Underwood, first woman elected by the band here, is the first woman nominated to run for chief.

She was one of four nominated at a meeting chaired by Indian agent Fred Clark Monday. Chief Elwood Modeste was not renominated. He declined a nomination for councillor. Ten council seats are vacant.

Voting takes place May 20 in the Cowichan Indian Community Centre (old Agricultural Hall). Nominees have until two days before the election to withdraw.

Named for chief besides Miss Underwood were Stanley Modeste, Eddie Elliott, Jr., and Edward Williams, Sr.

For council: Joseph Elliott, Ross Modeste, Abner Thorne, Alex Canute, Mrs. Eddie Elliott, Jr., Norman Joe, Francis Johnny, Mrs. Wallace Thorne, Alphonse Billy, Angus Smith, Leonard Peter, Sam Wilson, Adam Jimmy, William Joe, Mac Page, Robbie Daniels, Sammy Henry, Jr., Victor Thomas, Abel Joe and Dennis Alphonse.

Parksville Water System May Tap Nearby River

PARKSVILLE — Village council is considering augmenting the municipal water supply by utilizing Englishman River, about two miles south of Parksville.

The plan arose from a recommendation made by Russell Potter, consulting engineer from Victoria, who was asked by the council to make a survey of the present water system and advise on expansion for the future.

Mr. Potter said he did not think it profitable to try to increase the supply from the present source, a series of springs, as the result would not warrant the expense. A well beside the river was recommended by Mr. Potter as the best source of supply.

Council accepted the recommendation but did not make any decision for the present as the 1960 budget does not allow for such a large project. It is estimated that the cost of bringing water from Englishman River would be about $15,000.

Other business at the regular meeting included a vote passed to make a grant of $200 to Parksville and District Chamber of Commerce for the tourist bureau project.

Approval was given to a motion to purchase a second-hand pickup truck for village maintenance work.

Final adoption was given to four bylaws, the zoning amendment bylaw, road dedication bylaw, annual budget bylaw and the tax rate bylaw. Third reading was given the revised pound bylaw.

The amended zoning bylaw provides that 1,000 square feet is now necessary for camping space instead of 2,500 as in the past. An additional 200 square feet is required for each car.

Oak Bay Residents Not Alone

Big Drive to Start in June

Driven Out of City, Hordes of Crafty Rats Swarm Into Saanich

By JACK FRY

Staid Oak Bay residents may have been taking a lot of ribbing lately from their friends because of the serious rat problem. But, they're far from alone in their battle against vermin.

"The problem is quite severe in Saanich, where 20 calls have been received in the past two days since the Colonist drew attention to Oak Bay's problem," H. G. H. Watts, senior sanitary inspector for Saanich and South Vancouver Island Health Unit, said yesterday.

Saanich's rat infestation now includes the whole municipality, whereas about 18 months ago it was concentrated along a perimeter of the city of Victoria, he said.

Migration of the horde of vermin into Saanich was caused in part by the "excellent work carried on in the city," he said.

In fact, the city and Esquimalt have been so successful in their intensive extermination program that Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy, medical health officer for the Victoria-Esquimalt health department, Friday claimed virtual victory over rodents.

Of more concern now to health unit officials, rather than how the rats got into Saanich in the first place, is the question of what is to be done about it.

At the present time, the Saanich health department delivers rat bait to a complainant and instructs him on how to scatter it about his yard.

But, crafty rats are known to scout a whole neighborhood for food sources and bait placed on a single property often has little effect, said Mr. Watts.

"We hope to get a full program started about the first of June—when enough supplies are laid in for the big drive—in which whole areas will be cleaned out around properties where complaints are received," he said.

The sanitary inspector also endorsed a recommendation by a spokesman for a city exterminating firm that householders should not throw kitchen scraps into the backyard compost heap.

"If people would keep kitchen scraps out of the compost heaps, half the problem would be solved," said Mr. Watts. "Rats follow people, and wherever there's food, you'll always find rats."

Handling Men Right W.A.C. Tells Mabel

PORT ALBERNI—Premier Bennett told Mayor Mabel Anderson yesterday that he was glad to see the way she was handling the men on her council.

The premier made the comment when Mayor Anderson was introduced to the cabinet in the Tuesday session held here.

Mayor Anderson and her male councillors have been at odds on major municipal business since the first of the year.

Cabinet in Port Alberni

Proclamation Ends Tax Deal

PORT ALBERNI—Bill 88 was proclaimed here Tuesday during a closed session of the provincial cabinet, Premier Bennett announced as the cabinet reconvened in the council chambers in the afternoon.

The bill invalidates the Port Alberni fixed assessment agreement for school tax purposes.

Premier Bennett said that the proclamation means that the company (MacMillan, Bloedel & Powell River Ltd.) will now pay a "fair share" of school taxes.

The announcement was received with applause by city representatives and delegates from various organizations gathered to present briefs to the cabinet.

Periodic Disposal

New Law May Ease Body Ash Problem

A storage problem created in B.C. funeral homes and crematoriums by unclaimed remains of cremated bodies may be solved by legislation allowing disposal of the ashes, it was indicated here yesterday.

Dr. H. F. Angus, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, told a cemetery hearing yesterday funeral homes and crematoriums might be encouraged to create regulations whereby unclaimed remains could be disposed of after three months.

Alternatively, he added, such institutions might be able to solve the storage problem by applying to the PUC once each year for consent to dispose of unclaimed ashes.

He said unclaimed remains pose a problem in Victoria and Vancouver.

At the present time there is no provision for disposal, a spokesman for funeral homes said later.

Ashes being stored in Victoria and still awaiting claimants date back nearly 50 years, he stated.

CHARGE HEARD

Earlier yesterday the PUC heard a charge from counsel for a local monument works that some cemeteries have regulations which favor an American grave marker manufacturer.

Louis F. Lindholm, counsel for Mortimer's Monumental Works, said that regulations at Hatley Memorial Gardens here practically exclude all grave markers but those manufactured by the Jas. H. Matthews Co. of Pittsburgh.

But he said monument dealers are not charging a conspiracy on the part of cemetery operators.

OUT OF BUSINESS

A brief submitted by Mr. Lindholm on behalf of his client urged that cemeteries get out of the grave marker business and leave this to the monument firms.

Lawyer Allan Cox, counsel for Colwood Cemeteries, owners of Hatley Gardens, denied the charge that the American firm is favored over all others and indicated that the products of other firms would be used if they were competitive in price and quality.

$2,952 Bid Accepted For Land

The provincial government yesterday accepted a bid that was $48 less than the top bid on a piece of land adjoining the new Swartz Bay ferry approach road.

A $2,952 bid for 3.28 acres of land was submitted by G. B. Sterne, a garage owner who wants the land to build a new garage. The new road location leaves his present garage 200 yards short of the highway.

Mel Baldwin, of Sidney, who bid $3,000 for the land said he wanted it for speculation.

PORT ALBERNI — "We're not trying to dodge the situation, we are trying to meet it," Premier W. A. C. Bennett said when the question of restricted access roads was presented by a delegation from Tofino-Ucluelet District Chamber of Commerce at a cabinet meeting here yesterday.

He told Villiage Commision Chairman James Forbes who presented the west coast organization's brief that the government was pleased to have agitation toward lifting restrictions.

He pointed out that the B.C. government had spent $2,000,000 on the Alberni-Tofino Road and "we didn't build this road to remain on its present status."

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi said that agreements with forest companies which had undertaken construction of portions of the road binds the government until 1964.

The Tofino-Ucluelet submission was one of a half-dozen dealing with roads to serve the Island.

MLA John Squire asked for lifting of restrictions on the Alberni-Tofino Road, work to bring the road up to standard within two or three years, an access road to a public working circle in Barkley Sound area, a four-mile stretch of road to connect Port Albion and Ucluelet, construction of a stretch of some three-and-a-half miles to connect Bamfield with the private road now extending past Sarita.

He also contended that a road running northwest up the centre of the Island is practicable. "Such a road would tie in with existing logging roads in the Vernon, Woss and Nimpkish Lake regions and would, it is hoped, eventually have its terminus in the Quatsino Sound area."

No Alternative

DUNCAN — Workers laying a water pipe trunk line on Lakes Road were "exceptionally careful" and had "no alternative" but to break the road surface.

This was part of a report given to city council by Ald. James Saunders after a North Cowichan councillor complained of damage.

"It is hard to put pipes down without digging a hole," commented Mayor Jack Dobson.

Ald. Saunders said the asphalt surface came to the edge of the road width and that there was no shoulder in many places in which to put the pipe.

Housing Scheme

PARKSVILLE — Directors of the Golden Age Housing Society have announced that final approval of plans for the project has been received from Ottawa and tenders will be called immediately for construction of the housing units.

The society has had a series of setbacks in plans to provide low-rental housing here for senior citizens. Tenders were called some weeks ago but those received far exceeded the money available and plans had to be reformed.

'Council Material'

DUNCAN — Nine DeMolay members who attended a city council meeting were told they appear to be "good city council material."

It was the first group to attend a meeting, said Mayor Jack Dobson, who added the Masons were doing a "very wonderful" job supporting the youth group.

"It is a pleasure to have you here, and to hear something of the organization and what it has done for some of you," said the mayor. I see some good city council material among you."

Speakers for the DeMolay were David Waldie, master councillor; William Cleugh, treasurer, and Stanley Homer, chaplain.

It is expected no other business will be dealt with, but the council will officially sit to have the tax rates adopted before tax notices are sent out.

City clerk Gordon Berry said the tax notices may be sent out later this week, or possibly early next week.

Tax notices for North Cowichan are already in the mail, municipal officials said yesterday.

Leads Province

PORT ALBERNI—Building permits issued in Port Alberni in the period Jan. 1 to April 30 this year represent $1,191,642 in construction, according to a report submitted to council by building inspector William Fraser.

Seven new dwellings accounted for $83,000 of the April total while the assembly dock renewal project permit covered an $818,742 project.

Mr. Fraser said that Port Alberni is ahead of any place in B.C., percentage-wise, in construction figures for the year.

"Everywhere you go there are houses going up," Mayor Loran Jordon said.

Last year's figure for the first four months of the year was $689,905.

DUNCAN — Two penniless Vancouver men who went to sleep in the back of a truck in a used car lot got free board and lodgings on the government.

Lorne W. Lawrence and Daniel Henry Barrieau were arrested and fined $10 or one day in jail each for vagrants.

They were let off with the time already spent in jail. Magistrate A. C. Sutton told them to seek help if they ever need it again. The men were on their way to Victoria to get jobs.

Also in court, Barry D. Worth, 19, Herd Road, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving April 29 without a liability insurance policy. Fine was $10.

Span Estimate

ALBERNI — An estimate of $26,634 for cost of construction of the proposed new Kitsuksis Creek Bridge on Gertrude Street was received from consulting engineers by Alberni council Monday.

City clerk James Sawyer was instructed to apply to the provincial highways department for grant-in-aid for the project.

Concern over the council action taken to acquire the right of way for extension of Gertrude Street and approaches to the proposed bridge was expressed by Mayor Mabel Anderson in letters addressed to city solicitor R. J. Ohs, the council and Mr. Sawyer.

She questioned ownership of the land involved, expenditure of monies to cover moving of a duplex and for loss of serviced trailer space. Mayor Anderson asked for a legal opinion on six counts which had been connected with recent discord between herself and members of the council. Mr. Ohs said he would bring in a written reply for the records.

Paving Plan

ALBERNI—Start of a long-term plan for street paving, acceleration of sidewalk construction under the local improvement plan and establishment of a depreciation fund to assist in future purchase of city equipment were among the projects mentioned by council members during discussion of Alberni's $348,090 budget for 1960.

The budget was completed Monday with Ald. C. M. Blair, chairman of the finance committee, expressing satisfaction in the fact that it had been possible to limit the increase in tax rate to one mill.

Vandals Warned

DUNCAN — The Pioneer Park comfort station may be closed if vandals continue to damage it.

Mayor Jack Dobson has made the suggestion after the parks board had to put screens over windows. Damage is also done by youths riding bikes through tennis nets.

Ald. Steve Saunders has suggested that a $25 reward by posted for a conviction. Council feels it is not necessary because a close watch is to be kept by a newly-hired caretaker.

A $40,000, 18-lot housing development site off an extension of Rock Heights Avenue will be handed over in about a month by Esquimalt municipality to the Veterans' Land Act office.

The subdivision will be available for Second World War or Korean War veterans who want city lots instead of acreage and who will build their own homes, a VLA spokesman said yesterday.

Work was carried on all winter in clearing the heavily-wooded, high ground facing out over Gorge Vale Golf Club and the Gorge area.

Esquimalt will provide all service for the area such as installation of paving, sidewalks, lighting, sewerage and water mains.

Old Sawmill Fire-Razed

Fire razed an old, unused sawmill on Tomlinson Road, Central Saanich, yesterday, causing an estimated $1,000 damage.

Known locally as Carson's mill, the building had not been in use since 1954.

The alarm was turned in at 4.45 a.m. yesterday.

Nearly Hit Two Tots

Watch Your Children Shaken Driver Asks

A city motorist who came within six inches of running down two small children on Bay Street, yesterday made a plea for parents who live beside busy thoroughfares to keep more careful watch over their youngsters.

Donald Bacon, 1240 Acton, said that two toddlers, about three and four years old, ran in front of his car in the 1400 block Bay Street.

"Luckily enough, I have good brakes. I missed them by about six inches. I was six inches short of killing them," he said.

Although he parked his car, and went to a nearby home and reported the near-accident to city police, he said yesterday that he felt it was his duty to point out to parents the dangers of letting their young children run unattended beside busy streets.

"Possibly some child will have to die before the lesson is actually learned," he said. "I hope I can prevent that by telling my story, but if it still happens I'll know that I at least tried to do my bit."

Freak Traffic Accident Injures Oak Bay Girl

A 13-year-old Oak Bay school girl was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday with head injuries following a freak traffic accident on Monterey near Woodlawn Crescent.

Condition of the girl, Angela Jones, 2144 Quimper, was described as satisfactory last night by hospital officials.

Police said she was walking along the sidewalk when a car driven by James W. Powell, 18, 638 Monterey, struck her after hitting and breaking off a telephone pole.

The car had apparently gone out of control.

Witnesses at the scene said she was struck and thrown into the street when the car swung after striking the pole.

Damage to the car was described as light.

"If she had only been a few feet away she would have been safe," an unidentified witness said.

Louw Lashes Out At U.K. Critics

LONDON (UPI) — South African External Affairs Minister Eric Louw said yesterday that his country's relations with Britain will be seriously disturbed if severe criticism of South Africa is permitted to continue unchecked here.

He said attacks on South Africa from every quarter are increasing "in bitterness and intensity."

These attacks, he said, are "based on ignorance of South Africa and its peoples, and actuated not only by prejudice, but only too often by malice."

Louw criticized the House of Commons for taking "the unprecedented step of discussing and condemning, by a unanimous vote, the domestic policies of a fellow-member of the Commonwealth.

"This was the thanks," he said, "that South Africa received for aid rendered to Britain in past years."

Prelate's Plea

Help Us Remain Friends

LONDON (Reuters) — The Archbishop of Canterbury, speaking on the South African racial issue, yesterday urged the government there to "do something, however small, to relieve the consciences of its friends."

Dr. Geoffrey Fisher noted before an Anglican Church meeting here that the South African government "is insisting that it must bear its own burden, and indeed it must.

"The tragedy is that so far they have seemed to pay little or no regard to the burdens which they are imposing upon the hearts and consciences and political principles of those who are their brethren in the British Commonwealth, in culture, in Christian faith and in common humanity."

The meeting unanimously passed a resolution declaring that it believed the policy of racial segregation to be contrary to the purpose of God.

Last weekend, at a match in Windsor Great Park, the umpire penalized him for a foul. And Queen Elizabeth's husband felt like socking the guy good and hard.

He said so at a luncheon given by the Lord Mayor of London Monday.

"I had the greatest difficulty in restraining myself from dotting the umpire," the prince said.

The umpire—Maj.-Gen. Claude Pert, 61—isn't worried.

"Prince Philip was just joking," he said. "He always takes my decisions like a sportsman. He's a charming fellow and a very good player."

Kennedy Wins, Humphrey Quits

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts won Tuesday's West Virginia primary election, rocketing him within reach of the Democratic presidential nomination.

In a demonstration that a Roman Catholic can carry a state where only 4.5 per cent of the residents are of his faith, Kennedy trounced Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, a Congregationalist.

Humphrey conceded early today that Kennedy had won the primary, and announced that he is dropping out of the race for the nomination.

On the basis of incomplete returns, Kennedy was getting about 60 per cent of the total vote.

With one-third of the 2,751 precincts reported, Kennedy had 69,768 votes to 43,748 for Humphrey.

Canada, U.S. Talk Swap

WASHINGTON (CP)—Phillip Taylor, assistant U.S. air secretary, said Tuesday the U.S. Air Force is considering the possibility of acquiring a limited number of Canadian CL-44 cargo planes on the basis that Canada might be willing to engage in a production-sharing swap by buying U.S. fighter planes in exchange.

KITWE, Northern Rhodesia (Reuters)—White settlers demanded gun licences and a government minister spoke of "extermination" Tuesday night as police and Negroes clashed again in this troubled central African British protectorate.

Reds to Try Spy Pilot

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States pledged Tuesday to go to the aid of its allies which might be attacked by Russia for allowing American spy planes to use their air bases.

At the same time the state department accused Soviet Premier Khrushchev of waging a campaign of threats and intimidation against small countries innocent of any wrong-doing.

LANDING POINTS

The state department was replying to Khrushchev's threat to aim Soviet rockets against any foreign bases which serve as takeoff or landing points for intelligence flights into Russia. "There should be no doubt that the United States will honor these defence treaty commitments," the department said in a statement.

The statement came amid these other developments in the war of words over the American spy plane downed in Russia May 1:

BROUGHT TO TRIAL

1. Russia indicated in a note to the United States that the captured pilot, 30-year-old Francis G. Powers, would be brought to trial.

2. Chairman Clarence Cannon (Dem., Mo.) of the House of Representatives appropriations committee reported U.S. intelligence planes have ranged as far as 1,300 miles inside Russia in a series of espionage flights since 1946.

NOT SHOT DOWN

Cannon, who heard central intelligence chief Allen Dulles at a secret briefing Monday, said the high altitude U-2 plane had not been shot down by a Soviet rocket as Khrushchev claimed but was forced down by "some unforeseen and unavoidable "mechanical or physiological defect."

3. The state department assured Japan that future U-2 flights from Japanese bases would be "utilized only for legitimate and normal purposes of weather observation."

QUIETING STORM

This assurance was clearly aimed at quieting the storm in the Japanese Diet which is considering ratification of a Japanese-American security treaty.

In Moscow the Soviet Union notified the United States Tuesday that Powers "will be brought to account under the laws of the Soviet state."

AFTER CONFERENCE

This indication that the pilot may undergo a trial for espionage, probably not long after the end of the summit conference, was contained in a stiff protest delivered through the U.S. Embassy.

The Soviet government protested what it called the espionage reconnaissance flight of Powers' high-flying Lockheed U-2 jet.

SEEK INTERVIEW

The United States countered with a request in a note of its own for permission for an embassy officer to interview Powers who is reported by the Russians to have confessed he was spying.

It declared that "hostile acts of American aviation which have taken place numerous times in relation to the Soviet Union are not simply the result of the activity of the military command of the U.S.A. in various areas but are an expression of a calculated U.S.A. policy."

OTTAWA (CP) — John Taylor, Progressive Conservative MP for Vancouver Burrard, says the navy's rum ration should be eliminated to pay for Canadian participation in the Olympic Games. The rum costs $300,000 a year.

I May Kick the Habit But My Wife Won't

Colonist reporter Terry Hammond, along with scores of other Victorians, is trying to kick the cigaret habit with the help of the Colonist's recent series of articles by Arthur King. Hammond, a three-pack-a-day "addict," describes another step in his withdrawal.

Q-Day minus 10.

Although hundreds of readers seem to have joined me in an effort to kick the cigaret habit, it is with profound regret I report that the only two people I actually launched down the road to lung cancer have steadfastly refused to be saved.

One of these is my wife.

Up to the day we were married she did not smoke at all.

SUDDEN STRAIN

A mere 24 hours later she was up to two packages a day.

It was almost as though she had come under some sudden and severe nervous strain.

I asked our family doctor about it.

"It is almost as though she has come under some sudden and severe nervous strain," he said. (This cost me $8 and as any fool can see is practically identical with my own diagnosis).

Anyway, she does not propose to stop smoking.

STRAIGHT ANSWER

I thought she put it pretty succinctly last night when she said "I do not even propose to discuss it."

The other person I lured into the smoking fold was a real catch. He is a former athlete of some renown and his rapid deterioration during the three years since he became a chain smoker one day is sickening to behold.

DRAMATIC NEWS

He accompanied me on a 300-mile round-trip drive in the interior one time, and would not be smoking to this day if my wife had not waited until we were 150 miles out before deciding it was time to have our second child.

In true story-book tradition I started lighting one cigaret after another as soon as I got the news and turned the car around.

EXCEEDING, ETC.

The roads were exceedingly twisty, exceedingly icy, and we were going exceedingly quickly, mostly sideways.

After a couple of near misses with large trees alongside the road while lighting cigarets, this fellow offered to light them for me.

I shouldn't really say he just offered to light them, he actually pleaded with me to allow him to light them.

STILL AT IT

We were only half way back when I suddenly saw that instead of lighting one cigaret at a time, he was lighting three and smoking two of them himself. It is now three years later and he has never stopped.

As it turned out though, there really wasn't any hurry after all. Our second child wasn't born until three weeks later.
